Subject: Proposal for a REGULATION OF THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND OF THE COUNCIL on market surveillance and compliance of products and amending Council Directive 2004/42/EC, Regulations (EC) No 765/2008 and (EU) No 305/2011 of the European Parliament and of the Council
- mandate for negotiations with the European Parliament

I. INTRODUCTION

1. On 19 December 2017, the Commission transmitted the above-mentioned proposal for a Regulation to the European Parliament and to the Council. It is part of the so-called Goods package, which also contains the proposal for a Regulation on the mutual recognition of goods lawfully marketed in another Member State.

2. The objective of this Regulation is to improve the functioning of the internal market by strengthening market surveillance of products subject to the EU harmonisation legislation set out in the Annex I to this Regulation, and thus to ensure that non-compliant products are kept from being placed on the Union market.
3. As far as consistency of the proposed Regulation with the existing legislation in the area of market surveillance of products concerns, it is fully complementary to the Regulation (EC) No 765/2008. The Regulation (EC) No 765/2008 will be accordingly amended (see Article 39a of the proposed Regulation).

Further, the proposed Regulation is consistent with the proposal for a Regulation on market surveillance of products (when it comes to its objectives), which was adopted by the Commission in 2013 [COM(2013)75] as part of the Consumer Product Safety and Market Surveillance Package. The objective of COM(2013)75 was to simplify Union market surveillance framework in the field of non-food products through the reduction of legislation containing market surveillance rules. Member States' negotiations on the Consumer Product Safety and Market Surveillance Package have ended in deadlock, as the Member States remain divided on the "made-in" clause (= origin marking of products).

What makes the proposed Regulation indeed innovative in comparison with the existing Regulation (EC) No 765/2008 and the Commission proposal from 2013, is that rapidly growing e-commerce is for the first time comprehensively tackled. Articles 4 and 4a of the proposed Regulation are the key parts of this effort.

4. In the Commission proposal, several measures have been introduced to strengthen compliance with and enforcement of the Union harmonisation legislation on products covered by the proposal:
 - the proposal introduces the concept of a "person responsible for compliance information" established in the Union as a precondition for making products set out in the Annex to the Commission proposal available on the Union market;
 - the proposal strengthens cooperation among market surveillance authorities, economic operators and other relevant entities, in particular with respect to infringements;

- the proposal sets up general principles of market surveillance organisation, as well as powers and duties of market surveillance authorities. It also addresses the issue of testing capacities in the area of market surveillance within the Union;
 - the proposal lays down a procedure for carrying out cross-border mutual assistance requests;
 - the proposal provides for a strengthened framework in particular in the area of controls on products entering the Union market;
 - the proposal establishes a Union Product Compliance Network serving as a platform for coordination and cooperation between enforcement authorities of the Member States and the Commission. It also sets up a framework for cooperation and exchange of information with third countries or international organisations in the area of market surveillance.
5. The main responsible committee in the European Parliament is the Committee on the Internal Market and Consumer Protection (IMCO). Mr Nicola DANTI (S&D – IT) has been appointed as Rapporteur. IMCO adopted its report on 3 September 2018. EP confirmed its decision to enter into negotiations with the Council on 12 September 2018.

II. WORK CONDUCTED WITHIN THE COUNCIL

6. The first meeting of the Working Party on Technical Harmonisation (Goods package) was held on 23 January 2018. During the meeting, the Commission presented both proposals included in the Goods Package – the Mutual Recognition Regulation and the Compliance and Enforcement Regulation.

The impact assessment accompanying the proposal was also examined on 23 January 2018.

7. The examination of the proposal by the Working Party on Technical Harmonisation (Goods package) started in February 2018. Following the first, rather general meeting on 23 January 2018, eight Working Party meetings were held under the Bulgarian Presidency, which focused on detailed examination of the proposal. Under the Austrian Presidency, also eight Working Party meetings and several informal (bilateral) meetings have taken place. Extensive discussions during the meetings, as well as numerous comments submitted by many delegations have resulted in a significantly re-drafted version of the proposal.

8. Following the Working Party meeting on 24 October 2018 and an informal attachés meeting on 9 November 2018, the Presidency has prepared a compromise text set out in the Annex to this note.

III. MAIN ISSUES

9. When the Commission presented its proposal, delegations were critical of nearly all articles. On 5 September 2018, the AT Presidency tabled a substantial re-draft, in which objectives of the Commission proposal were kept. The re-draft found general acceptance.

In a joint effort, the following issues have been successfully resolved and generally agreed at Working Party level: parallel application of several legal acts on market surveillance; information obligations of Member States; conflict of interests/compliance issues regarding partnership agreements with industry; logical structure and practical contents of Chapter IV on organisation, obligations and activities of market surveillance authorities; sufficient, but not excessive powers; Union testing facility support; cross-border mutual assistance; products entering the Union market; distribution of tasks of the Union compliance network; use of ICSMS; third country pre-export controls, and penalties. The only article where a compromise has not been possible is Article 4. This article (Tasks of economic operators regarding compliance) together with Article 4a (Authorised representative) have been the most discussed articles of the whole proposal.

Article 4 of the Commission proposal introduces the concept of a "person responsible for compliance information", namely that a product may be made available on the market only if there is a "person responsible for compliance information" established in the Union. With this concept, nothing would change compared to the present legal situation for traditional distribution chains (with the participation of an importer). However, in case of e-commerce originating from third countries, where up to now a seller could dispatch products directly or via a fulfilment service provider to an end-user within the Union, provisions of Article 4 require a third country manufacturer to mandate a person within the Union. Tasks of the person responsible for compliance information include the provision of information on the conformity of the product in question to market surveillance authorities, but also the cooperation with them on any measure to eliminate a risk caused by that products. As proposed by the Commission, these provisions should apply to the whole harmonisation legislation.

10. At Working Party meetings delegations raised several issues concerning Articles 4 and 4a of the re-draft, in particular issues relating to:

- a) the concept of a "person responsible for compliance information" (with respect to products covered by Article 4). [para. 1]

In the course of discussions, this concept changed to an economic operator responsible for compliance (with respect to products covered by Article 4), which some delegations contested or could not accept. They argued that this would be a substantial amendment with unpredictable or negative consequences, when read together with other provisions of Articles 4 and 4a.

- b) the question "who should be responsible for compliance". [para. 1a]

In the Commission proposal, the person responsible for compliance information is the manufacturer, the importer or any natural or legal person established in the Union with a written mandate from the manufacturer to perform tasks listed in Article 4 on his behalf. The new proposal clarifies the obscure reference to fulfilment service providers in the definition of economic operators in Article 3(12) of the Commission proposal by separating and improving it and using a proper term. With this definition, it has been possible to replace the "person responsible for compliance information" by a more precise concept of an "economic operator with tasks regarding compliance". His role has been properly defined. In the future, for any possible way of transferring products from a third country to end-users in the Union there will be an interlocutor within the Union available to market surveillance authorities. Nevertheless, flexibility and proportionality are ensured by giving a third country seller the choice of using either the service of fulfilment service providers within the Union, or mandating an authorised representative. On the other hand, fulfilment service providers don't have automatically to take over tasks relating to compliance: they can decide whether to require an authorised representative from their business partner or accept the respective tasks by themselves. Overall, this approach will ensure a level playing field between online and traditional trade in the future (as an importer has already the same tasks).

Some delegations, however, strongly disagree that providers offering any two of warehousing, picking, packaging or shipping services should have tasks relating to compliance of products.

c) tasks of economic operators responsible for compliance. [para. 3]

In the Commission proposal, one of the tasks of a person responsible for compliance information is to cooperate with market surveillance authorities on any action taken to eliminate or mitigate risks posed by products subject to the Regulation. In the course of discussions, the scope of this cooperation was clarified as to include corrective action necessary to remedy any case of non-compliance. This clarification was considered necessary for ensuring a level playing field, as it reflects an existing task of importers. This led to a heated discussion about how to interpret such a task in the context of "responsibility for compliance". Some delegations understood it as "liability for non-compliance", which they could not accept. CLS, however, clarified that liability is not part of the provision. The AT Presidency has adapted the wording so that the article does not longer refer to responsibility, but to obligations and tasks, thus further aligning it with the Decision 768/2008/EC and avoiding any misinterpretation in regard to liability.

Taking into account - in particular - the amendments to Article 4 as mentioned above and Article 4a, a group of six delegations (EE, IE, LU, NL, SK and UK) signed a request for a Council impact assessment, arguing that these amendments could have serious economic consequences, which have not been fully assessed (e.g. retaliation by third countries, additional costs for third country economic operators, creation of trade barriers). They also argued that the initial provision regarding a person responsible for compliance information was already insufficiently addressed in the Commission impact assessment SWD(2017) 466. This request for a Council impact assessment did not find a sufficient support by delegations, and it was rejected. Many delegations shared the view that a Council impact assessment would unduly delay the legislative efforts and that with this proposal, we could close a loophole in the current legislation relating to recent developments in the area of e-commerce (e.g. online sales). Some delegations highlighted the need for a much greater focus on the EU market surveillance, in particular on the issue of tracing non-compliant products imported into the Union and identifying responsible entities.

- d) the scope of application of Article 4, incl. Article 4a. [para. 7]

Another issue, which raised concerns at Working Party meetings, was the scope of application of Article 4. Some delegations would have preferred a (rather) narrow scope of application, based on legislation covering products, which, when non-compliant, would present an elevated risk. The list of legislation selected according to this criterion was contested by some delegations on grounds of insufficient data to apply it. On the other hand, some delegations asked to keep the scope of the whole Union harmonisation legislation, as proposed by the Commission. As regards this issue, the AT Presidency has considered the proposal of NL and others asking for a risk-based approach (further specified in Recitals 15a, 15b and 15c): Article 4 applies now only to legal acts covering products that, when non-compliant, would cause an elevated level of risk to public interests. Even more important, all selected legal acts already include obligations on ensuring compliance for the complete traditional distribution chain (manufacturer, importer and distributor). Article 4 is aiming at closing loopholes to keep the system working by adapting these rules to recent developments in e-commerce, which could not be foreseen when the respective legislation was drawn up. Article 4 is not introducing any new objectives to sectoral legislation, which are not already present.

In addition to this, the Presidency has taken an IE compromise proposal on board, namely it has included a review clause in Article 62 that two years after the date of application of this Regulation, the Commission prepares an evaluation report on the implementation of Article 4, and that the Commission develops comprehensive guidelines on the practical implementation of Article 4, including fulfilment service providers.

Overall, the AT Presidency has re-drafted Article 4 to accommodate requests of delegations concerning issues mentioned above (insofar as they have not questioned its objective) and to improve the text. The basic concept of a mandatory interlocutor established within the Union as a precondition for placing products on the market has been kept, because a majority of delegations finds it useful. The economic operator will be responsible for a minimum set of tasks set out in paragraph 3. These tasks include the task to cooperate with market surveillance authorities and to ensure that the necessary corrective action is taken to remedy any case of non-compliance. As regards the scope of Article 4, the AT Presidency has further worked with delegations on this issue to precisely target only those legal acts where the measures are necessary and proportionate.

The AT Presidency understands that delegations are generally satisfied with the outcome of discussions at Working Party level, besides a still remaining reservation that some delegations have with Article 4 (including Article 4a). Therefore, the Presidency intends to structure the COREPER discussion about the proposal so that all delegations will be given the opportunity to express their views on:

- Article 4 (incl. Article 4a). In principle, there are two options:

Option 1: to keep Article 4 as it stands now

Option 2: to delete Article 4 ('zero option')

The AT Presidency has a strong preference for keeping the article as it stands now (Option 1); and

- any other highly political issues.

The AT Presidency understands that some delegations may still have issues to sort out.

IV. CONCLUSION

11. The Presidency compromise text strikes a delicate balance between the need to further address issues raised by some delegations at Working Party level and the need to address the problem of an increasing number of non-compliant products in the EU and a loophole in the current legislation on market surveillance (relating to recent developments in the area of e-commerce).

At the COREPER meeting on 23 November 2018, COREPER is invited to endorse the compromise text set out in the Annex to this note [with or without Article 4, incl. Article 4a] and to agree to mandate the Presidency to start negotiations with the European Parliament.

New text compared to the Commission proposal appears in bold/underlined. Deletions are marked with ~~strikethrough~~.

Proposal for a

REGULATION OF THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND OF THE COUNCIL

~~laying down rules and procedures for compliance with and enforcement of Union harmonisation legislation on products on market surveillance and compliance of products and amending Regulations (EU) No 305/2011, (EU) No 528/2012, (EU) 2016/424, (EU) 2016/425, (EU) 2016/426 and (EU) 2017/1369 of the European Parliament and of the Council, and Directives 2004/42/EC, 2009/48/EC, 2010/35/EU, 2013/29/EU, 2013/53/EU, 2014/28/EU, 2014/29/EU, 2014/30/EU, 2014/31/EU, 2014/32/EU, 2014/33/EU, 2014/34/EU, 2014/35/EU, 2014/53/EU, 2014/68/EU and 2014/90/EU Council Directive 2004/42/EC, Regulations (EC) No 765/2008 and (EU) No 305/2011 of the European Parliament and of the Council~~

(Text with EEA relevance)

THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND THE COUNCIL OF THE EUROPEAN UNION,

Having regard to the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, and in particular Articles 33, and 114 ~~and 207~~ thereof,

Having regard to the proposal from the European Commission,

After transmission of the draft legislative act to the national parliaments,

Having regard to the opinion of the European Economic and Social Committee¹,

Acting in accordance with the ordinary legislative procedure,

Whereas:

- (1) In order to guarantee the free movement of products within the Union, it is necessary to ensure that products fulfil requirements providing a high level of protection of public interests such as health and safety in general, health and safety in the workplace, protection of consumers, protection of the environment, ~~and~~ public security and protection of any other public interests. Robust enforcement of these requirements is essential to the proper protection of these interests and to create the conditions in which fair competition in the Union market for goods can thrive. Rules are therefore necessary to ensure this enforcement throughout the internal market, including on products entering the Union from third countries.

- (2) Strengthening the Single Market for goods through further enhancing efforts to keep non-compliant products from being placed on the Union market was identified as a priority in the Communication from the Commission ‘Upgrading the Single Market: more opportunities for people and businesses’². This should be achieved by strengthening market surveillance, providing the right incentives to economic operators, intensifying compliance controls and promoting closer cross-border cooperation among enforcement authorities, including through cooperation with customs authorities.
- ~~(3) The framework for market surveillance should be strengthened, with a view to further improving compliance with and enforcement of Union harmonisation legislation on products.~~
- ~~(8) (3a)~~ The framework established by this Regulation should complement and strengthen existing provisions in Union harmonisation legislation relating to the ~~provision~~ ensuring of compliance ~~of information about~~ products and the framework for cooperation with economic operators, the market surveillance of products and controls on those products entering the Union. However, in accordance with the principle of lex specialis, this Regulation should apply only in so far as there are no specific provisions with the same objective, nature or effect in other existing or future rules of Union harmonisation legislation. The corresponding provisions of this Regulation should not therefore apply in the areas covered by such specific provisions, for instance those set out in Regulation (EC) No 273/2004 of the European Parliament and of the Council on drug precursors³, Regulation (EC) No 1223/2009 of the European Parliament and of the Council on cosmetic products⁴, Regulation (EU) 2017/745 of the European Parliament and of the Council on medical devices⁵ and Regulation (EU) 2017/746 of the European Parliament and of the Council on in vitro diagnostic medical devices⁶, including the use of EUDAMED, and Regulation (EU) 2018/858 of the European Parliament and of the Council on the approval and market surveillance of motor vehicles and their trailers, and of systems, components and separate technical units intended for such vehicles.

⁴ Regulation (EC) No 1223/2009 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 30 November 2009 on cosmetic products (OJ L 342, 22.12.2009, p. 59).

⁵ Regulation (EU) 2017/745 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 5 April 2017 on medical devices, amending Directive 2001/83/EC, Regulation (EC) No 178/2002 and Regulation (EC) No 1223/2009 and repealing Council Directives 90/385/EEC and 93/42/EEC (OJ L 117, 5.5.2017, p. 1).

⁶ Regulation (EU) 2017/746 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 5 April 2017 on in vitro diagnostic medical devices and repealing Directive 98/79/EC and Commission Decision 2010/227/EU (OJ L 117, 5.5.2017, p. 176).

- (4) Directive 2001/95/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council⁷ lays down the general safety requirements for all consumer products and provides for specific obligations and powers of the Member States in relation to dangerous products as well as for the exchange of information to that effect through the Union Rapid Alert System for dangerous non-food products (RAPEX). Market surveillance authorities should have the possibility of taking the more specific measures available to them under that Directive. In order to achieve a higher level of safety for consumer products, the mechanisms for exchanges of information and rapid intervention situations provided for in Directive 2001/95/EC and reinforced by Regulation (EC) No 765/2008 of the European Parliament and of the Council⁸ should be complemented to make them more effective.
- (5) Provisions on market surveillance of ~~This Regulation should cover products that are subject to the Union harmonisation legislation listed in the Annex I. The legislation listed in the Annex should cover all Union harmonisation legislation concerning manufactured products other than food, feed, medicinal products for human and veterinary use, living plants and animals, products of human origin and products of plants and animals relating directly to their future reproduction. This will ensure a uniform framework for market surveillance of those products at Union level. Several instruments of Union harmonisation legislation on products need to be amended in consequence, in particular to remove references to certain provisions of Regulation (EC) No 765/2008. If new Union harmonisation legislation is adopted in the future, it will be for that legislation to provide whether this Regulation is also to apply to that legislation.~~ If new Union harmonisation legislation is adopted in the future, it will be for that legislation to provide whether this Regulation is also to apply to that legislation.
- (5a) Articles 15 to 29 of Regulation (EC) No 765/2008 laying down the Community market surveillance framework and controls of products entering the Community market will be replaced by this Regulation. That framework includes also the provisions on controls of products entering the Union market in Articles 27, 28 and 29, which apply not only to products covered by the market surveillance framework as outlined above, but to all Union legislation in so far as other Union legislation does not contain specific provisions relating to the organisation of controls on products entering the Union market. It is therefore necessary to extend the scope of the provisions of this Regulation on products entering the Union market to all Union legislation as well.
- (6) In order to rationalise and simplify the overall legislative framework, whilst simultaneously pursuing the objective of Better Regulation, the rules applicable to controls on products entering the Union market should be revisited and integrated into a single legislative framework for controls on products at the external borders.
- ~~(7) Safety of consumers largely depends on the active enforcement of Union harmonisation legislation on products providing for safety requirements. It is therefore necessary to strengthen enforcement measures. These measures should be continuously improved and increasingly effective with a view to meeting the current challenges of a global market and an increasingly complex supply chain.~~

⁷ Directive 2001/95/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 3 December 2001 on general product safety (OJ L 11, 15.1.2002, p. 4).

⁸ Regulation (EC) No 765/2008 of the European Parliament and of the Council setting out the requirements for accreditation and market surveillance relating to the marketing of products and repealing Regulation (EEC) No 339/93 (OJ L 218, 13.8.2008, p. 30).

7a. Practical experience of market surveillance has shown that increasingly complex supply chains sometimes involve economic operators whose novel form means that they do not fit easily into the traditional supply chains according to the existing legal framework. Such is the case, in particular, with fulfilment service providers, which perform many of the same functions as importers but which might not always correspond to the traditional definition of importer in Union law. In order to ensure that market surveillance authorities can carry out their responsibilities effectively and to avoid a gap in the enforcement system, it is appropriate to include fulfilment service providers within the list of economic operators against whom enforcement measures may be taken by market surveillance authorities. By including fulfilment centres within the scope of the present Regulation, market surveillance authorities will be better able to deal with new forms of economic activity in order to ensure the safety of consumers and the smooth functioning of the internal market, including where the economic operator acts both as an importer as regards certain products but as a fulfilment service provider as regards other products.

~~(8) The framework established by this Regulation should complement and strengthen existing provisions in Union harmonisation legislation relating to the provision of compliance information about products and the framework for cooperation with economic operators, the market surveillance of products and controls on those products entering the Union. However, in accordance with the principle of lex specialis, this Regulation should apply only in so far as there are no specific provisions with the same objective, nature or effect in other existing or future rules of Union harmonisation legislation. The corresponding provisions of this Regulation should not therefore apply in the areas covered by such specific provisions, for instance those set out in Regulation (EC) No 273/2004 of the European Parliament and of the Council on drug precursors, Regulation (EC) No 1223/2009 of the European Parliament and of the Council on cosmetic products, Regulation (EU) 2017/745 of the European Parliament and of the Council on medical devices and Regulation (EU) 2017/746 of the European Parliament and of the Council on in vitro diagnostic medical devices.~~

(9) Responsibility for enforcing Union harmonisation legislation should lie with the Member States, whose market surveillance authorities should be required to ensure that the legislation is fully complied with. The Member States should, therefore, establish systematic approaches to ensure effectiveness of market surveillance and other enforcement activities.

(10) Certain definitions currently set out in Regulation (EC) No 765/2008 should be aligned with definitions set out in other acts of Union legislation and, where appropriate, reflect the architecture of modern supply chains. The definition of ‘manufacturer’ in this Regulation does not relieve manufacturers of any obligations they may have in Union harmonisation legislation where specific definitions of manufacturer are applied, which may include any natural or legal person who modifies a product already placed on the market in such a way that compliance with the applicable Union harmonisation legislation may be affected and places it on the market, or any other natural or legal person who places a product on the market under his name or trade mark.

- (10a) There is Union harmonisation legislation in the scope of this Regulation using specific terms for economic operators, among them: the producer of an article and the downstream user as defined in each case in Regulation (EC) No 1907/2006 and Regulation (EC) No 1272/2008, the installer as defined in Directive 2014/33/EU, the supplier as defined in Regulation (EC) No 1222/2009 or the dealer as defined in Regulation (EU) 2017/1369. It should be clarified that also these economic operators have responsibilities as economic operators.
- (11) Economic operators throughout the entire supply chain should be expected to act responsibly and in full accordance with the legal requirements applicable when placing or making products available on the market, so as to ensure compliance with the Union harmonisation legislation on products. This Regulation should be without prejudice to the obligations which correspond to the role of each economic operator in the supply and distribution process pursuant to specific provisions in Union harmonisation legislation, with the manufacturer retaining ultimate responsibility for compliance of the product with requirements in the Union harmonisation legislation.

- (12) Modern supply chains encompass a wide variety of economic operators who should all be subject to enforcement of Union harmonisation legislation, while taking due consideration of their respective role in the supply chain, and the extent to which they contribute to the making available of products on the Union market. Therefore, it is necessary to apply this Regulation to economic operators that are directly concerned by ~~Regulation (EC) No 273/2004 of the European Parliament and of the Council⁹, Regulation (EC) No 1907/2006 of the European Parliament and of the Council¹⁰, Regulation (EC) No 1272/2008 of the European Parliament and of the Council¹¹, Regulation (EC) No 1222/2009 of the European Parliament and of the Council¹², Regulation (EU) 2016/424 of the European Parliament and of the Council¹³, Regulation (EU) 2016/425 of the European Parliament and of the Council¹⁴, Regulation (EU) 2016/426 of the European Parliament and of the Council¹⁵ and Regulation (EU) 2017/1369 of the European Parliament and of the Council¹⁶, Regulation (EU) 2017/745 and Regulation (EU) 2017/746, and in Directive 2006/42/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council¹⁷, Directive 2006/66/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council¹⁸, Directive 2009/48/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council¹⁹, Directive 2010/35/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council²⁰, Directive 2013/29/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council²¹, Directive 2013/53/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council²², Directive 2014/28/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council²³, Directive 2014/29/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council²⁴, Directive 2014/30/EU of the European~~

(12a) In the case of a product being sold online or through other means of distance sales, the product should be considered made available on the market if the offer is targeted at end-users in the Union. In line with the applicable Union legislation on international private law a case-by-case analysis, taking into account the relevant circumstances, should be applied to establish whether an offer is targeted at end-users in the Union. An offer should be considered targeted if the relevant economic operator directs, by any means, his or her activities to a Member State of the European Union. For the case-by-case analyses, relevant factors, such as the geographical areas to which dispatch is possible, the languages available used for the offer or for ordering or payment possibilities, need to be taken into consideration. In case of online sales the mere accessibility of the economic operators' or the intermediaries' website in the Member State in which the end-user is established or domiciled is insufficient.

- (13) The development of e-commerce is also due to a great extent to the proliferation of information society service providers, normally through platforms and for remuneration, which offer intermediary services by storing third party content, but without exercising any control over such content, thus not acting on behalf of an economic operator. Removal of content regarding non-compliant products or where it is not feasible blocking access to non-compliant products offered through their services should be without prejudice to the rules laid down in Directive 2000/31/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council³³. ~~In particular, no general obligation should be imposed on service providers to monitor the information which they transmit or store, nor should a general obligation be imposed upon them to actively seek facts or circumstances indicating illegal activity. Furthermore, hosting service providers should not be held liable as long as they do not have actual knowledge of illegal activity or information and are not aware of the facts or circumstances from which the illegal activity or information is apparent.~~

(14) A fairer single market should ensure equal conditions for competition to all economic operators and protection against unfair competition. To this purpose, strengthened enforcement of Union harmonisation legislation on products is necessary.

(14a) Good cooperation between manufacturers and the market surveillance authorities is a key element allowing immediate intervention and corrective action in relation to the product. It is important that there should be a contact person established in the Union so that market surveillance authorities have someone to whom questions requests can be addressed, including for providing information regarding a product's compliance with Union harmonisation legislation and who can be required to take as relevant according to its role in the supply chain corrective action in case a non-compliance cannot be brought to an end otherwise. The person responsible for providing such economic operator with tasks regarding compliance information should be the manufacturer, or the importer, or any another natural or legal person designated by the manufacturer for this purpose, for example another economic operator established in the Union subject to obligations in relation to the manufacture of products or placing on the market, an authorised representative or a fulfilment service provider established in the Union for consignments handled by it when no other economic operator is established in the Union. The role of a person responsible for an economic operator with tasks regarding compliance information established in the Union is essential for providing market surveillance authorities with an interlocutor established in the Union, and for performing specific tasks in a timely manner to ensure that the products comply with the requirements of Union harmonisation legislation, for the benefit of consumers, workers and businesses within the Union. The provisions in this Regulation requiring there to be a person established in the Union responsible for compliance information should not apply where specific requirements set out in certain legal instruments on products achieve the same result in effect, namely Article 4 of Regulation (EC) No 1223/2009, Article 15 of Regulation (EU) 2017/745 and Article 15 of Regulation 2017/746.

~~(15) Member States should provide assistance to economic operators either through information on the applicable Union harmonisation legislation by the Product Contact Points established under Regulation (EU) [Reference to new Regulation on mutual recognition to be inserted]³⁴, or through guidance on the applicable Union harmonisation legislation by the market surveillance authority within the framework of compliance partnership arrangements. Market surveillance authorities should be able to build on the existing cooperation with stakeholders and be permitted to conclude memoranda of understanding with stakeholders, with a view to promoting compliance or identifying non-compliance with regard to categories of product within a given geographical area.~~

(15a) Obligations of this Regulation requiring an economic operator to be established in the Union should only apply to areas where the Union legislator has already identified the need for an economic operator as a liaison point with the market surveillance authorities. This need is no longer properly addressed due to new supply chains. Therefore, this Regulation should remedy this.

(15b) However, the provisions need only apply where a risk-based approach indicates that this would be appropriate, having regard to the principle of proportionality, taking into account high level of protection of end-users in the Union. In this respect, consideration should be given to situations where potential risks or cases of non-compliance are low, or in which products are mainly traded through traditional supply chains. Such is the case e.g. for Directives 2014/33/EU ('lifts') and 2016/424/EU ('cableways').

(15c) Moreover, those provisions need not apply where due to sector specifics it is not relevant in view of the link with e-commerce or where the specific requirements set out in certain legal instruments on products achieve the same result in effect, namely Regulation (EC) 648/2004 ('detergents'), Regulation (EC) No 1223/2009 ('cosmetics'), Regulation (EU) 167/2013 ('agricultural and forestry vehicles'), Regulation (EU) 168/2013 ('motorcycles'), Directive 2014/28/EU ('civil explosives'), Directive 2014/90/EU ('marine equipment'), Regulation (EU) 2016/1628 ('non-road mobile machinery'), Regulation (EU) 2017/745 ('medical devices'), Regulation (EU) 2017/746 ('in-vitro diagnostics'), Regulation (EU) 2017/1369 ('energy labelling') and Regulation (EU) 2018/858 ('motor vehicles'). In case of products covered by Directives 2014/31/EU ('non-automatic weighing instruments') and 2014/32/EU ('measuring instruments'), these provisions do not need to apply as controls in regular intervals are foreseen for such products.

(15d) Contact information of economic operators with tasks relating to compliance should be indicated with the product in order to facilitate checks throughout the supply chain.

~~(28)~~ (15e) Economic operators should fully cooperate with market surveillance authorities and other competent authorities to ensure the smooth performance of market surveillance activities and to enable the authorities to perform their tasks. This includes, where requested by authorities, providing the contact information of the economic operators with tasks relating to compliance of products where this information is available to them.

(15f) Economic operators should have easy access to high quality, comprehensive information. Since the single digital gateway established under Regulation xxxx/2019 provides for a single point of access to information, it can be used in respect to providing relevant information on Union harmonisation legislation to economic operators. Nevertheless, Member States may decide to integrate such information into their national webpages ensuring access to the Product Contact Point established under Regulation yyyy/2018 on mutual recognition, or select a different solution, in line with the principle of subsidiarity. In order to facilitate the economic operators in addressing properly their requests for information, the clear identification of the respective national information channels should be ensured.

Guidance on issues relating to technical specifications or harmonised standards, design of a specific product, or pre-market approvals of a specific product should not be part of the obligations of Member States under this article.

- (16) Member States should designate their own market surveillance authorities. This Regulation should not prevent Member States from choosing the competent national authorities to carry out the market surveillance tasks. In order to facilitate administrative assistance and cooperation, Member States should also designate appoint a single liaison office. Liaison offices should ~~ensure the coordination of enforcement and market surveillance activities, as well as communication with the market surveillance of other Member States and with the Commission~~ provide a single contact point for national and other Member States' authorities as well as for the Commission regarding all matters of market surveillance. In this function, they should represent at least a coordinated position of the market surveillance authorities and the authorities in charge of the control on products entering the Union market.
- ~~(35)~~ (16a) Member States should be required to ensure that adequate financial resources are always available in order to staff and equip the market surveillance authorities appropriately. An efficient market surveillance activity is demanding in terms of resources, and stable resources should be provided, at a level appropriate to the enforcement needs at any given moment. ~~Public financing should therefore be supplemented by the collection of fees to cover~~ Member States should have the possibility to supplement public financing by reclaiming the costs incurred when performing market surveillance activities in relation to products that were found to be non-compliant, ~~and taking due account of the economic operator's compliance record.~~
- ~~(17)~~ ~~It is necessary to establish a Union Product Compliance Network, hosted by the Commission, aimed at coordinating and facilitating the implementation of joint enforcement activities by Member States, such as joint investigations. This administrative support structure should allow the pooling of resources and maintain a communication and information system between Member States and the Commission, thereby helping to strengthen enforcement of Union harmonisation legislation on products and deter infringements.~~
- (18) Market surveillance activities should be thorough and effective, to ensure that Union harmonisation legislation on products is applied correctly. Given that controls may represent a burden for economic operators, market surveillance authorities should organise and conduct inspection activities on a risk based approach, ~~taking~~ considering their interests ~~into account~~ and limiting the said burden to what is necessary for the performance of efficient and effective controls. Furthermore, market surveillance activities should be performed with the same level of care by the competent authorities of the Member State irrespective of whether non-compliance of the given product is relevant on the territory of that Member State or is likely to have an impact on the market of another Member State.
- (19) In order to ensure that the Union harmonisation legislation on products is correctly enforced, market surveillance authorities should have a common set of investigative and enforcement powers, allowing for enhanced cooperation between market surveillance authorities and more effective deterrence for economic operators that willingly infringe Union harmonisation legislation. Those powers should be sufficiently robust to tackle the enforcement challenges of Union harmonisation legislation, along with the challenges of e-commerce and the digital environment and to prevent economic operators from exploiting gaps in the enforcement system by relocating to Member States whose market surveillance authorities are not equipped to tackle unlawful practices. In particular, the powers should ensure that information and evidence can be exchanged between competent authorities so that enforcement can be undertaken equally in all Member States.

- (20) This Regulation should be without prejudice to the freedom of Member States to choose the enforcement system that they deem appropriate. Member States should be free to choose whether their market surveillance authorities can exercise investigation and enforcement directly under their own authority, by recourse to other public authorities, as appropriate or by application to the competent courts.
- (21) Market surveillance authorities should be in a position to open investigations on their own initiative if they become aware of non-compliant products placed on the market.
- (22) Market surveillance authorities should have access to all necessary evidence, data and information relating to the subject matter of an investigation in order to determine whether applicable Union harmonisation legislation has been infringed, and in particular to identify the economic operator responsible, irrespective of who possesses the evidence, information or data in question and regardless of where it is located and of the format in which it is held. Market surveillance authorities should be able to request third parties in the digital value chain to provide all the evidence, data and information necessary.
- (23) Market surveillance authorities should be able to carry out the necessary on-site inspections, and should have the power to enter any premises from where businesses are conducted, land or means of transport, that the economic operator uses for purposes relating to his trade, business, craft or profession.
- (24) Market surveillance authorities should be able to require any representative or member of staff of the economic operator concerned to give explanations or provide facts, information or documents relating to the subject matter of the on-site inspection, and to record the answers given by that representative or competent staff member.
- (25) Market surveillance authorities should be able to check the compliance of products to be made available on the market with Union harmonisation legislation and to obtain evidence of non-compliance. They should, therefore, have the power to make test purchases and, where the evidence cannot be obtained by other means, to purchase products under a cover identity.
- (26) In the digital environment in particular, market surveillance authorities should be able to bring non-compliance to an end quickly and effectively, notably where the economic operator selling the product conceals his identity or relocates within the Union or to a third country in order to avoid enforcement. In cases where there is a risk of serious and irreparable harm to end-users due to non-compliance, market surveillance authorities should be able to take ~~temporary~~ measures, where there are no other means available to prevent or mitigate such harm, including, where necessary, ~~the suspension of a website, service or account, or putting a fully qualified domain name on hold for a specific period of time,~~ requiring the operator of an online interface to remove content for his online interface and/or to display a warning. When such a request is not observed and cannot be enforced, e.g. because the online interface is operated from a third country, the respective authority should have the power to request other information society service provider to restrict access to the online interface and, if necessary, to impose penalties. These measures should be taken in accordance with the principles laid down in Directive 2000/31/EC. ~~Furthermore, market surveillance authorities should have the power to close down or require a third party service provider to close down a website, service or account or a part of it, or to delete a fully qualified domain name.~~

(26a) The implementation and exercise of powers in the application of this Regulation should also comply with other Union and national law (e.g. Directive 2000/31/EC), including with applicable procedural safeguards and principles of the fundamental rights. The implementation and exercise of powers should also be proportionate and adequate in view of the nature and the overall actual or potential harm of the infringement. Competent authorities should take all facts and circumstances of the case into account and should choose the most appropriate measures, which are essential to address the infringement covered by this Regulation. Those measures should be proportionate, effective and dissuasive. Member States should remain free to set out conditions and limits for the exercise of the powers and fulfil duties in national law. Where, for example, in accordance with national law, prior authorization to enter the premises of natural persons and legal persons is required from the judicial authority of the Member State concerned, the power to enter such premises should be used only after such prior authorization has been obtained. Where for example, in accordance with national law, there are limits for using specified kind of evidence, as a right to refuse to give evidence as a witness if the witness is the party's relative, or prohibition of hearing an ordained person who is bound by the secret of the confession, market surveillance authority should refrain from actions that would be contrary to goals of these limits.

- (27) Market surveillance authorities act in the interest of economic operators, end-users, and of the general public, to ensure that public interests established covered by respective Union harmonisation legislation on products are consistently preserved and protected through appropriate enforcement ~~action~~ measures, and that compliance with such legislation is ensured across the supply chain through appropriate ~~controls~~ checks. Consequently, ~~market surveillance authorities should account to economic operators, end-users and the general public for the efficiency and effectiveness of the activities they perform. They should provide access to information concerning the organisation and performance of their activities, including controls, and regularly publish information on activities performed and the results of such activities. They should also, subject to certain conditions, be entitled to publish or to make available information about the compliance record of individual economic operators based on the outcome of market surveillance controls.~~
- ~~(28) Economic operators should fully cooperate with market surveillance authorities and other competent authorities to ensure the smooth performance of market surveillance activities and to enable the authorities to perform their tasks.~~
- (29) This Regulation should be without prejudice to the functioning of RAPEX in accordance with Directive 2001/95/EC and ~~Regulation (EC) No 765/2008.~~
- (30) This Regulation should be without prejudice to the safeguard clause procedure provided for by sectoral Union harmonisation legislation, pursuant to Article 114(10) of the Treaty. With a view to ensuring an equivalent level of protection throughout the Union, Member States should be authorised to take ~~restrictive~~ measures in relation to products presenting a risk to health and safety, or other aspects of public interest protection. They should also be required to notify those measures to other Member States and the Commission, allowing the Commission to take a position on the justification of national measures that restrict the free movement of products with a view to ensuring the functioning of the internal market.

- (31) Information exchanged between market surveillance authorities, and the use of evidence and investigation findings should ~~be subject to the strictest guarantees of confidentiality and of professional and commercial secrecy~~ follow the principle of confidentiality subject to the requirement of protecting the interests of end-users. Information should be handled according to applicable national law, in order to ensure that investigations are not compromised and that the reputation of the economic operator is not prejudiced.
- (32) Where for the purposes of this Regulation it is necessary to process personal data, this should be carried out in accordance with Union law on the protection of personal data. Any processing of personal data under this Regulation is subject to Regulation (EU) 2016/679 of the European Parliament and of the Council³⁵ and Regulation (EC) No 45/2001 of the European Parliament and of the Council³⁶, as the case may be.
- (33) In case that there is a longer lasting or permanent lack of testing capacity, resulting in high prices, long waiting times and complicated procedures, the Commission should set up a programme to facilitate the extension of scope and capacity of existing or the creation of new testing capabilities. All testing facilities under this programme should be accredited in accordance with the requirements of Regulation (EU) 765/2008. A scenario where only very few laboratories are capable of testing certain kinds of technologies should also be avoided. The programme should be based on a survey. This should be preceded by a mapping of the existing available testing capacities for the different sectors compared to the needs for joint actions and national controls by market surveillance authorities. Details of programmes are set up by implementing acts. ~~To ensure the reliability and consistency of testing across the Union in the market surveillance framework, the Commission should designate Union testing facilities. Furthermore, a more comprehensive information system should be developed for sharing test results within the Union in order to avoid unnecessary duplication and to ensure greater consistency at Union level. The Commission may also set up a proper monitoring.~~
- (34) ~~Laboratories designated by the Commission as Union testing facilities should possess the expertise, equipment, infrastructure and staff to carry out tasks to the highest standards. To ensure sound and reliable results, Union testing facilities should be accredited according to the relevant Union harmonised standards. The accreditation should be delivered by a national accreditation body operating in accordance with Regulation (EC) No 765/2008.~~
- (35) ~~Member States should be required to ensure that adequate financial resources are always available in order to staff and equip the market surveillance authorities appropriately. An efficient market surveillance activity is demanding in terms of resources, and stable resources should be provided, at a level appropriate to the enforcement needs at any given moment. Public financing should therefore be supplemented by the collection of fees to cover the costs incurred when performing market surveillance activities in relation to products that were found to be non-compliant, and taking due account of the economic operator's compliance record.~~

35 Regulation (EU) 2016/679 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 27 April 2016 on the protection of natural persons with regard to the processing of personal data and on the free movement of such data, and repealing Directive 95/46/EC (General Data Protection Regulation) (OJ L 119, 4.5.2016, p. 1).

36 Regulation (EC) No 45/2001 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 18 December 2000 on the protection of individuals with regard to the processing of personal data by the Community institutions and bodies and on the free movement of such data (OJ L 8, 12.1.2001, p. 1).

- ~~(36) The financing of market surveillance activities through fees collected from economic operators should take place in full transparency, so as to enable citizens and businesses to understand the method and data used to establish fees and to be informed on the use of revenue from fees.~~
- (36a) Mechanisms for mutual assistance should be established, as it is imperative for the Union market for goods that the market surveillance authorities of the Member States cooperate with each other effectively. Professional and commercial secrecy should not establish a reason to refuse acquiring or exchanging legally required documentation, like the declaration of conformity, or where applicable the declaration of performance, or the technical documentation.
- (37) It is appropriate that Member States designate the authorities responsible for applying the customs legislation and any other authorities in charge under national law of control on products entering the Union market.
- (38) An effective way to ensure that unsafe or non-compliant products are not placed on the Union market would be to detect such products before they are released for free circulation. ~~Customs a~~^A~~uthorities, as authorities~~ in charge of the control on products entering the ~~customs territory of the Union~~ market, enjoy a complete overview of trade flows across the external borders, and should therefore be required to carry out adequate controls on a risk assessment basis, to contribute to a safer market place. It is for Member States to designate the specific authorities that should be responsible for the appropriate documentary and, where necessary, physical or laboratory checks of products before those products are released for free circulation. A uniform enforcement of Union harmonisation legislation on products can only be achieved through systematic cooperation and exchange of information between market surveillance and ~~customs~~ other authorities designated as authorities in charge of the control on products entering the Union market. These authorities should receive well in advance from the market surveillance authorities all the necessary information concerning non-compliant products or information on economic operators where a higher risk of non-compliance has been identified. In turn, ~~customs~~ authorities in charge of the control on products entering the customs territory of the Union should inform the market surveillance authorities in a timely manner of the release of products for free circulation, and the results of controls, where such information is relevant for the enforcement of Union harmonisation legislation on products. Furthermore, where the Commission becomes aware of a serious risk posed by an imported product, it should inform the Member States about those risks in order to ensure coordinated and more effective compliance and enforcement controls at the first points of entry to the Union.
- (38a) Importers should be reminded that Articles 220, 254 and 256-258 of Regulation (EU) No 952/2013 laying down the Union Customs Code foresee that products entering the Union market that require further processing in order to be in compliance with Union harmonisation legislation applicable to them shall be placed under the appropriate customs procedure allowing such processing by the importer. Generally, the release for free circulation should not be deemed as proof of conformity with Union legislation, as such release does not necessarily include a complete check of compliance.

(38b) In order to use the EU Single Window environment for customs and therefore to optimise and unburden the data transfer between customs and market surveillance authorities, it is necessary to set up electronic interfaces allowing automatic data transfer. Additional burden for customs authorities should be limited and the interfaces should be highly automated and easy to be used.

~~(39) In order to support customs and market surveillance authorities in carrying out tasks related to controls on products entering the customs territory of the Union, a more favourable treatment should be granted for products declared for free circulation by an authorised economic operator, as defined in Article 38(2) of Regulation (EU) No 952/2013, pending the establishment of the procedure for the exchange of information on the status of the authorised economic operators and their record of compliance related to product safety. Such an approach should allow a more targeted control, on a risk basis, of products released for free circulation.~~

~~(40) The Commission should be able to exchange market surveillance related information with regulatory authorities of third countries or international organisations, with a view to ensuring compliance prior to their export of products to the Union market.~~

(40a) It is necessary to establish a Union Product Compliance Network, hosted by the Commission, aimed at structured coordination and cooperation between enforcement authorities of the Member States and the Commission, and at streamlining the practices of market surveillance within the Union facilitating the implementation of joint enforcement activities by Member States, such as joint investigations. This administrative support structure should allow the pooling of resources and maintain a communication and information system between Member States and the Commission, thereby helping to strengthen enforcement of Union harmonisation legislation on products and deter infringements. The establishment and involving of ADCOs (Administrative Cooperation Groups, established by Member States to discuss sector-specific issues) in the Network is to be understood in a general sense, so that also groups can be included that do not bear the name “ADCO”. These groups, on their own initiative, should also invite representatives of relevant stakeholders and experts if it seems useful. The Commission has in this respect the tasks to provide the necessary administrative and financial support.

~~(41) In that context, i~~It is necessary to maintain and further develop the existing Information and Communication System for Market Surveillance (ICSMS). For the purpose of collecting information relating to the enforcement of Union harmonisation legislation on products, ICSMS should be upgraded and be accessible to the Commission, single liaison offices, and market surveillance and customs authorities, as well as to the general public through a public interface. Furthermore, an electronic interface should be developed to allow effective exchange of information between national customs systems of customs and market surveillance authorities. With regard to the cases of mutual assistance requests the single liaison offices should give any support necessary for cooperation between the relevant authorities. Therefore, ICSMS should provide the functions enabling an automated indication to the single liaison offices when the period of time according to Article 24(2) is not met. When sectoral legislation already foresees electronic systems for cooperation and data exchange, as is the case for example for medical devices by the EUDAMED system, those systems should be kept in use when appropriate.

- (41a) In general, ICSMS should be used to exchange information considered helpful for other market surveillance authorities. This may include checks undertaken in the context of market surveillance projects, regardless of the outcome of the tests. The amount of data to be entered in ICSMS should strike a balance between becoming too burdensome, when the efforts for entering the data would exceed the work involved in doing the actual checks, and being comprehensive enough to support greater efficiency and effectiveness on the side of the authorities. Thus, the data entered in ICSMS should also cover simpler checks than laboratory tests only. Nevertheless, there should be no need to include just brief visual checks. As a guideline, checks which are individually documented, should also be entered in ICSMS.
- (41b) The interactions between customs and market surveillance authorities should ensure transparency and effectiveness of cooperation and also facilitate reporting and later statistical evaluations. Where national systems for this purpose are already in implementation or operational, individual solutions should be applied. However, Member States are encouraged to use ICSMS for interactions between customs and market surveillance authorities or use electronic interfaces between ICSMS and the national systems when they are available.
- (41c) Injuries caused by non-compliant products are important information for market surveillance authorities. ICSMS should therefore provide for related data fields so that market surveillance authorities can enter readily available reports provided for in the course of their investigations, thus facilitating later statistical evaluations.
- (40) (41d) The Commission should be able to exchange market surveillance related information with regulatory authorities of third countries or international organisations, with a view to ensuring compliance prior to their export of products to the Union market. Such agreement should be based on implementing acts adopted according to the committee procedure.
- (41e) In order to achieve a high degree of compliance with applicable Union harmonisation legislation on products while at the same time ensuring an effective resource-allocation and a cost-efficient control of products entering the Union market, the Commission should, after having consulted Member States, be able to enter into negotiations with third countries and ultimately approve country specific systems. After having completed an approved pre-export control, products may, as part of the risk assessment performed by authorities in charge of controls on products entering the Union market, benefit from a higher level of confidence than comparable products which have not been subject to a pre-export control. Member States should be able to support or reject the details of a proposed pre-export control system through use of the examination procedure.

- (42) The Commission should carry out an evaluation of this Regulation against the objectives it pursues. Pursuant to point 22 of the Interinstitutional Agreement of 13 April 2016 on Better Law Making³⁷, the evaluation, based on efficiency, effectiveness, relevance, coherence and value added, should provide the basis for impact assessments of options for further action, particularly as regards the application and enforcement of the provisions related to the tasks of economic operators placing products on the market and the system of product-related pre-export controls.
- (43) The financial interests of the Union should be protected through proportionate measures throughout the expenditure cycle, including the prevention, detection and investigation of irregularities, the recovery of funds lost, wrongly paid or incorrectly used and, where appropriate, administrative and financial penalties.
- (44) The diversity of sanctions across the Union is one of the main reasons for inadequate deterrence and uneven protection. Rules on establishing sanctions, including monetary penalties, are a matter of national jurisdiction and should, therefore, be determined by national law. ~~However, common criteria and guidance principles in determining the level of penalties should be established in order to achieve uniform and effective deterrence across the Union. Defining a set of criteria for determining effective, proportionate and dissuasive levels of penalty across the Union, in particular as regards the past behaviour of the economic operators, their cooperation during investigation by market surveillance authorities, and the level of harm, is essential to avoid weak spots that could encourage forum-shopping.~~
- (45) In order to ensure uniform conditions for the implementation of this Regulation, implementing powers should be conferred on the Commission in relation to the procedures for ~~designating Union testing facilities~~ support, ~~to the procedure for requests for information and requests for enforcement measures~~, to statistical data covering controls performed by customs authorities with respect to products subject to Union harmonisation legislation, ~~to the data to be exchanged and the procedure to be followed for the exchange of information between customs authorities and market surveillance authorities on the status of authorised economic operators~~, to details of implementation arrangements for the information and communication system and data relating to the placing of products under the customs procedure ‘release for free circulation’ transmitted by customs authorities, to the framework for cooperation and information exchange with third countries and to the implementation approval and withdrawal of the systems of product-related pre-export controls, ~~including a model for the certificates of compliance or verification to be used.~~ Those powers should be exercised in accordance with Regulation (EU) No 182/2011 of the European Parliament and of the Council³⁸.

- (46) Since the objective of this Regulation, namely to ensure that products placed on the Union market fulfil the requirements of Union harmonisation legislation cannot be sufficiently achieved by the Member States given the need for a very high degree of cooperation, interaction and coherent action of all of the competent authorities in all Member States, but can rather, by reason of its scale and effects, be better achieved at Union level, the Union may adopt measures, in accordance with the principle of subsidiarity as set out in Article 5 of the Treaty on European Union. In accordance with the principle of proportionality as set out in that Article, this Regulation does not go beyond what is necessary in order to achieve that objective.
- (47) This Regulation respects fundamental rights and observes the principles recognised in particular by the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union and present in the constitutional traditions of Member States. Accordingly this Regulation ~~must~~ should be interpreted and applied respecting those rights and principles. In particular, this Regulation seeks to ensure full respect for consumer protection, the freedom to conduct a business, the freedom of expression and information, the right to property and the protection of personal data,
