Statement by Croatia

"With the wish of securing the timely adoption of Council Conclusions on EU Priorities in UN Human Rights Fora in 2017, Croatia embraces the spirit of consensus; however, we would like to present a statement in our national capacity.

Croatia will continue to promote the universality and indivisibility of human rights, in order that all human beings effectively benefit from these principles. Croatia attaches special importance to the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights and the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, which together with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights form the very foundation of international human rights.

With regard to the promotion of freedom of religion and belief, Croatia is determined to raise awareness about the violence and persecution of Christians and other religious minorities in countries where religious freedoms are not fully respected, especially in the Middle East.

The work and the scope of activities of all Special Procedure mandate holders, especially the new UN Independent Expert on SOGI, should be carried out in strict compliance with international law and internationally recognized human rights. It is our position that there is no need to single out any of the Special Procedure mandate holders as they all perform work in their respective fields of human rights protection.

Croatia will pay special attention to the promotion and the protection of the traditional family, based upon marriage defined as a union of a woman and a man, as the natural and fundamental group unit of society.

Croatia notes that the term "sexual and reproductive health and rights" is lacking consensual definition at international level, including within the European Union. In that sense, Croatia interprets this term in a way that it does not include abortion.

Croatia reserves its right to promote these positions in all multilateral fora in our national capacity."

Statement by Hungary

"The adoption of the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development (ICPD) and the Beijing Platform for Action of the Fourth World Conference on Women marked a remarkable consensus. They placed the enjoyment of human rights at the heart of development and important gains in the fields of health, gender equality and education have been achieved since their adoption. These fields are at the core of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development incorporating as founding principles the universal respect for human rights and human dignity, the rule of law, justice, equality and non-discrimination.

Hungary remains dedicated to its human rights commitments, including the protection and promotion of women's rights and gender equality. Hungary is deeply committed to the implementation of the ICPD Programme of Action and Beijing Platform for Action as well as the 2030 Agenda, serving also as basic references in the fields of sexual and reproductive health and reproductive rights. Hungary notes, that the term of "sexual and reproductive health and rights (SRHR)" and related issues, like "sexual rights", "comprehensive sexuality education", "modern methods of contraception", "emergency contraception", are lacking consensual definition at international level, including within the European Union. These issues are interpreted and promoted by Hungary in the context of the 2030 Agenda, the ICPD Programme of Action and the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action and in line with its national legislation.

Hungary strongly rejects all forms of discrimination or violence based on any ground or status, including on sexual orientation and gender identity (SOGI). In the meantime Hungary reserves its sovereign right to define the personal scope and the content of family relations and of marriage in accordance with its national legislation. Hungary deems of utmost importance that the mandate and activities carried out by the new United Nations Independent Expert on SOGI observe international law and internationally recognized human rights standards."

Statement by Poland

(paragraphs 23 and 25)

"Poland rejects any attempts to discriminate whomever on any ground, including sexual orientation, and combats any attempts to use violence against LGBT persons. At the same time, we believe that the creation of the mandate of independent expert on the protection against violence and discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identity should have been approached in a manner conducive to the elaboration of a consensual outcome. As it was not the case, Poland cannot agree to any language that would welcome the establishment, in a direct or indirect manner, of the above-mentioned mandate of the independent expert.

Poland also remains dedicated to respond to challenges to achieve full equality between women and men. International agreements guide us in this respect, however not all significant issues are addressed by the international instruments. As the term of "sexual and reproductive health and rights" lacks any internationally recognized definition, Poland interprets its scope in line with the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development and the Beijing Platform for Action."

Statement by the Commission

"In light of the rules of the Treaties, a CFSP decision cannot be used as a means to confer power on the Council to enact a derogation from the procurement rules defined in the Financial Regulation given that such power is attributed to the Commission. Moreover, any derogation from the rules on participation in the procurement procedures of the EUSR cannot be of generic and unlimited nature and must be duly justified in each specific case.

The Commission considers that the derogating provisions on procurement in the Council Decision can only be interpreted as a purely enabling clause. The Commission continues to exercise its competences in the implementation of the budget of the EUSR as stemming from the Treaties and in accordance with the rules and procedures of the Financial Regulation."
