DE	Global	Mitigation	Stimulating Ambitious Nationally Appropriate Mitigation Actions (NAMAs) to Reduce GHGs in Developing Countries	01/2011-12/2013	Center for Clean Air Policy	1,9	Grant	This project aims to stimulate the development of ambitious and well designed nationally appropriate mitigation actions (NAMAs) and contribute to the provision of fast-start finance for the quick implementation. It is critical that those involved in NAMA design and implementation learn quickly about the most successful efforts to design and implement climate change mitigation actions, to monitor outcomes and to deliver finance. Regional peer-to-peer learning dialogues among developing countries in Latin America and Asia will involve officials responsible for implementing climate change mitigation policies, NGOs, financiers, industry, and policy experts, and expose officials from several key ministries in each country to the best practices in GHG mitigation. They will have the opportunity to work together to define actions for their countries and will receive peer review and training from other developing country colleagues. In-depth case studies of best practices and policy papers on key issues prepared by CCAP will be presented to fuel these discussions. CCAP will highlight opportunities for climate change mitigation policies developed by key country officials to support development goals such as poverty alleviation, energy security, and health protection through reductions in conventional pollutants. This project will likely lead to expanded support from other donors to spur implementation of ambitious actions in the target countries to provide follow-on technical assistance and capacity building financed from other sources. This will help to spur implementation of ambitious actions in the target countries.

DE	Global	Mitigation	Building MRV Standards and Capacity in Key Developing Economies	01/2011-12/2014	World Resources Institute	4,0	Grant	Developing countries will be required to measure, report, and verify mitigation actions according to international guidelines, but few have the capacity to do so. The goal of this project is to build the capacity of a set of countries both to inform the design of those guidelines and to implement them at the national level. Our approach will be to define the features of a robust national MRV system; map current national and sectoral systems against those features; engage policy-makers ("top-down") as well as the private sector and civil society ("bottom-up") in national stakeholder groups to understand national needs and inform the design of national systems; and build capacity and support in key corporate sectors and civil society to adopt and implement national MRV systems. This "top-down - bottom-up" approach should not only assist in getting guidelines and standards in place, but also build support for the implementation of such guidelines.

DE	Morocco	Mitigation	Solar Power Plant Ouarzazate Marokko	01/2012-12/2026	KfW	15,0	Grant	Morocco's energy supply is 97% dependent upon fossil fuel imports; in addition, the climate performance of the present energy mix is very poor. At the same time, the country hosts some of the best solar and wind power locations worldwide. In order to tap this potential, Morocco has adopted ambitious renewable-energy expansion targets, which are set out in the Moroccan Solar Plan. The project's goal is to complete the first phase of the planned solar power plant in Quarzazate with 160 MW capacity. The wider aim is the efficient, ecologically sound and socially equitable generation of electricity and the market introduction of a path-breaking technology for global climate change mitigation. Quarazazate is the first reference project for large-scale solar thermal power technology. As this is capital-intensive, the European Commission, the European Investment Bank and the Agence Francaise de Development, among others, are participating.

The project develops the capacities needed to establish a GHG monitoring system and an emissions trading scheme (ETS) at regional level. This involves sharing international experience as well as supporting the development and evaluation of the technical and infrastructure conditions required to establish a GHG monitoring system and a regional ETS. An established, comprehensive GHG monitoring system allows the government to respond to the failure of provinces or businesses to fulfil their reduction obligations with decisive action to counteract this failure. Without a monitoring system, unfulfilled reduction obligations would not come to light and this would have a negative effect on GHG reduction results overall.

EC	Multi	Adaptation/Mitigation	FAO: Climate Smart Agriculture: Capturing synergies between Mitigation, Adaptation and Food Security	2011-2014		3,30	Grant	The project has three main objectives: (1) Assist countries in building a country-specific evidence base for developing strategies and roadmaps. This includes identification of: (i) agricultural practices where there are potential synergies and trade-offs between food security and agricultural adaptation/mitigation, (ii) household-level and institutional constraints that need to be addressed in order to secure these synergies, and (iii) possible policy options to enable adoption of these practices. (2) Support the formulation of nationally-owned roadmaps that prioritise implementation of promising policies and practices, identify the potential and approach for mitigation financing, estimate related costs, identify other enabling needs (capacity building, technology transfer) and show how food security, agricultural sector development, and climate change agendas, institutions and financing could be linked. (3) Support the formulation of pilot project proposals to capture synergies between mitigation, adaptation and food security from agricultural practices that include specific institutional innovations and financing mechanisms to support them.

EC	Multi	Mitigation	EU-UNDP Climate Change Capacity Building (Phase II)	2011-2015		5,00	Grant	The overall objectives of this extension of the Programme continue to be to strengthen the capacity of developing countries to design GHG inventory management systems, develop MRV systems, identify opportunities for NAMAs, support the design of LEDS and promote the adoption of mitigation actions by selected sectors, with the participation of Industry. National priorities and circumstances and national economic plans are always taken into account. Capacity building is also an important building block of sectoral approaches for climate action. A second part of the Programme would provide support to an additional 8 countries. The Programme will be carried out over 4 years and include two components: a) Public sector capacity building on MRV and LEDS and b) Industry capacity building for mitigation actions. However, it is important to note that a second phase of the EU-UNDP Programme would focus on the Public Sector and not split countries on the basis of these two components. Rather, based on recommendations from countries included in Phase 1, countries will determine to what extent activities related to Industry will be addressed. At a minimum, and depending on the scope of the projects of these additional countries, the private sectors or representatives of selected industries will be included in the stakeholder processes. Selection of countries will continue to be based on capacity building needs and priorities for support. The Programme will build on the infrastructure, experience and lessons learned, expanding the initiative to other countries. An expanded indicative list of 25 countries is provided at the end of this Action Fiche, from which, 8 countries will be selected on the basis of discussions with the UNDP regional centres, EU Delegations in the host countries, UNDP country offices, and respective government focal points.
