6. Accessions to WCO

Following a lengthy and divisive discussion at both the June and December 2017 Council, agreement has in principle been reached to establish a Working Group in an attempt to bring a solution to the issue.

Taking into account that there were decisions taken elsewhere that affected or could possibly bring a solution to the problem, meaning that some delegates of the Council did not have the power to take a decision prior to having consulted with their respective capitals, the final decision on the establishment of a Working Group has been postponed till the June 2018 Council.

The report of the December 2017 Council concluded the following:

"The Council approves the establishment of a Working Group as agreed at the July 2017 Council Sessions to look at the matter of Accessions to the WCO, in the frame of a constructive approach.

Composition

According to the principle of fair geographical representation, each region will appoint two Members. These Members will provide experts for the Working Group, acting in their national capacity.

The Working Group will choose its Chairperson by drawing lots. At the beginning of each meeting, the Working Group will draw lots to decide on its Chairperson. No Member shall occupy the Chair for a second time until each Member has occupied the Chair.

Scope

The Working Group will discuss the issue of accession to the WCO taking fully into account the decisions of the Council.

Upon completion of its work, the Working Group will submit a report approved by consensus to the Council."

At the Europe Region Heads of Customs Conference in April 2018, the Region nominated the UK and Russia as regional representatives on the Working Group.

It is understood that the Policy Commission will not discuss this agenda Item, but the Council Chair will report on developments since the December 2017 Council, including the outcome of the Group of "Friends of the Chair", and postpone any potential discussions for the Council.

- Accessions to the WCO

Common position

The EU and its Member States should reiterate that we acknowledge that the world has evolved considerably since the Customs Co-operation Council Convention was drafted 65 years ago. We recognise that there is a need for a solution that associates the Council in an accession process. This is an approach that is also applied in other international organisations.

The EU and its Member States continue to support the establishment of the Working Group as proposed by the Council Chair at the Council in December 2017. We also support the nomination of United Kingdom and Russia as the Europe Region's representatives on the Working Group.

Taking into account the sensitivity amongst Members associated with this issue, and its negative effect on the work of the WCO, it is crucial that the Organisation returns to its core business; namely Customs matters. The constitution of the Working Group would allow for this. To avoid the risk of jeopardising the establishment of the Working Group by discussing again the Terms of Reference, we should recommend that this discussion should be held within the Working Group itself, allowing the Council to return to its normal business.

Depending on the developments up to the Policy Commission/Council and during the discussions of this agenda item, it cannot be excluded that further coordination on the spot will be required.

A discussion in the Policy Commission/Council on the accession of Kosovo*¹ to the WCO (e.g. as part of a discussion on the Terms of Reference for the Working Group) would be counterproductive and should therefore be avoided. If that were not possible, a restrained approach in any such discussion should be recommended in order to limit its negative impact. In such a case, the following approach should be applied:

- Accession of Kosovo to the WCO

As the situation regarding the EU on this matter has not changed since December 2017 Council, the EU should remain status neutral and would reiterate the point made at the July and December 2017 WCO Council.

EU point to be made

The EU takes note of the notification by the Belgian authority and reaffirms that such designation is without prejudice to its positions on the status of Kosovo, in line with UNSCR 1244/1999 and the ICJ Opinion on the Kosovo declaration of independence.

EU Member States are entitled to express their national position on this issue.
