The existence of the Union's external competence in regard to its internal policies is therefore not contingent on the adoption of measures of secondary law covering the area in question. Should the need arise to review the content of the negotiating directives the Commission will make use of its right of initiative required to that end. Statements by Sweden and United Kingdom concerning the financing of a legally binding agreement It is for Member States to decide on the extent to which a legally binding agreement will be financed. Joint financing obligations arising out of the need to organise a secretariat or equivalent body constitute a decision on which Sweden and United Kingdom intend to adopt a position in connection with a possible future decision to sign and conclude such an agreement. Statement by Romania Romania regards the use of the reverse charge mechanism for cereals and technical plants as a last resort measure, having in mind the emergency character of such a measure, whose sole objective is to allow Romania to regulate its market and reinforce the surveillance of its operators in this particular sector and be in a position to revert to the normal system. Therefore, Romania commits itself not to extend or renew this derogation beyond the expiration date mentioned in this decision. Statements by France, Belgium and Italy France, Belgium and Italy point out that the fractionated payment system is the basis of tax on consumption in all countries that have adopted VAT. Any derogation from this system can thus be no more than a last resort and an emergency measure in proven cases of fraud, and must offer guarantees as to the necessity and exceptional nature of the derogation granted, the duration of the measure and the specific nature of the products concerned. They further point out that the reverse charge procedure always entails a risk of the fraud being transferred to other States. They will not agree to the reverse charge procedure being used systematically to make up for inadequate surveillance by a Member State's authorities. In the present case they understand that the sector involved is very much upstream in the chain of production and note that the Romanian authorities have undertaken not to request a renewal of this derogation and above all to implement structural measures to remedy the situation before the end of the two-year period. 2011/384/EU: Council Implementing Decision of 20 June 2011 authorising Sweden to apply a reduced rate of electricity tax to electricity directly provided to vessels at berth in a port ('shore-side electricity') in accordance with Article 19 of Directive 2003/96/EC 10692/11 Council Decision granting an EU personnel security clearance authorising Mr Uwe CORSEPIUS to have access to information classified up to TRES SECRET UE/EU TOP SECRET level 10742/11

Statement by France on the distribution between the EU Member States of mackerel quotas which have not been exchanged with the Faroe Islands "France would like to state that it disagrees with the provisions of this Regulation concerning the distribution among EU Member States of mackerel quotas which have not been exchanged with the Faroe Islands, as those provisions are entirely at odds with the principle of relative stability of fishing opportunities. The provisions compensate a single Member State for the failure to conclude a bilateral agreement between the European Union and the Faroe Islands in 2011 and severely penalise other States, especially France, by not allowing them to tap into the Faroese resources. France suggested ways of making up for the fact that there is no agreement with the Faroe Islands, without undermining the principle of relative stability, by increasing the volume of the exchanges with Norway and establishing exchanges between Member States in order to maintain relatively stable fishing opportunities. The Commission did not support these suggestions. As a result, France and other Member States continue to be affected by, and remain uncompensated for, the lack of agreement with the Faroe Islands in 2011. As discussions on the reform of the common fisheries policy kick off, France is disappointed that this Regulation disregards the principle, endorsed by the vast majority of Member States, of maintaining relative stability as the policy's cornerstone. France would therefore ask the Commission and all Member States to give careful consideration to the Northern Agreements in order to examine the impact their evolution has had on relative stability and define a long-term strategy which would ensure that the interests of all Member States can be taken into account during the negotiation and implementation of these Agreements". Statement by Spain concerning Mackerel (MAC/8C3411) "The Kingdom of Spain considers that the quota assigned in ICES zone VIII, IX and X; EU waters of CECAF 34.1.1, cannot be reduced as a consequence of future agreements/negotiations with thirds Countries, taking into account the special conditions agreed and included in the Council and Commission statement of December 2009."

Statement by Germany on the distribution of mackerel quotas "Germany is disappointed that no fisheries agreement has been reached with the Faroe Islands for 2011, and calls on the Commission to use its best endeavours to bring about a resumption of the Agreement. Germany welcomes the fact that the southern mackerel components have been included in agreements with the coastal states, but regrets that the principle of relative stability was not observed when dividing up the mackerel quota intended for the Faroe Islands. Germany too emphasises that this must not prejudice the distribution of the EU quota for this stock in future." Statement by the UK to accompany abstention The UK recognises the need for urgent adoption of this proposal to make the amendments in a timely way in order to meet industry needs. We have had to abstain on this occasion, however, as we have not had time for our Parliament to consider the text fully in order to clear the proposal from scrutiny. We observe that Protocol No 1 (on the role of National Parliaments) to the Treaty on the European Union and the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union (TFEU) provides for a minimum of 8 weeks between a draft legislative Act being made available to national Parliaments, and the date when it is placed on a provisional agenda for the Council for its adoption, or for the adoption of a position under a legislative procedure. If this proposal is agreed as anticipated on Monday, 20 June, this will be 48 days after bringing forward the proposal, a little short of the 8 weeks required under the Protocol. While we recognise that this particular proposal is not a "legislative act" for the purposes of the Treaties, we would ask that the Commission and Council should, as far as possible, respect the principles of this Protocol when agreeing fishing opportunities measures under Article 43.3 of TFEU. We recognise that the specific provision in Article 43.3 is provided to support the practical need for timely decisions on fishing opportunities, but we would very much appreciate the continuing efforts of the Commission to bring forward such proposals in a timely way, to enable full consideration by national Parliaments.

Statement by Lithuania on the allocation of SPRFMO quotas Lithuania cannot approve the proposed allocation of SPRFMO quotas between Member States, considering the proposed share of Jack mackerel quota for Lithuania being calculated in contravention of the principle of relative stability. In TACs and Quota Regulation for 2010 the internal allocation key for Jack mackerel in SPRFMO Convention area was finally set with no indication of temporary or ad hoc nature of this arrangement. The same principle as in Council regulation (EC) 53/2010 was reiterated in Article 26(1) of Council regulation (EC) 57/2011, and it was already approved back in December Council. Therefore we consider that the principle of relative stability, established in Article 20(1) of Council Regulation (EC) 2371/2002, came into force and, accordingly, should be respected when allocating quotas for 2011. We remain of the opinion, that Lithuanian quota for 2011 in SPRFMO Convention area should be calculated according to the same share as in 2010, otherwise as a result of violation of the principle of relative stability, Lithuanian share in the total EU quota permanently drops from 21,23 % to 17,50 %. Providing that the above-mentioned arguments are not acknowledged, Lithuania regrets the outcome and shall not support the current proposal. Written procedure completed on 23 June 2011 Council Decision authorising the European Commission to submit, on behalf of the European Union, a proposal for an amendment to Appendix I to the Convention on the conservation of migratory species of wild animals with a view to the tenth meeting of the Conference of the Parties 11078/11 Statements by France, the Netherlands and the United Kingdom The UK, France and the Netherlands do not feel able to support the proposed Council Decision as very few changes have been made to the proposals to list the Saker and Red-footed Falcons on Appendix I of CMS and these do not sufficiently address the concerns we have raised previously on a number of occasions. We believe that these are important issues which still need to be considered further before the proposals are finally discussed at the CMS CoP in November. In particular, the proposal to list the Saker falcon was very contentious at the 9th Conference of Parties to CMS. We have highlighted a number of issues about the current proposal which relate to these previous debates and which we believe will be raised again at CoP 10. We consider that submission of this proposal without consideration of these issues is likely to result in a repeat of the same contentious and divisive debates. We believe this will, if not addressed, have negative consequences for the effective working of the Convention as well as for the reputation of the EU and its Member States in this forum, in particular with a number of Arab countries. We are of the view that action for both species under the CMS Raptor MoU has the potential to deliver similar conservation outcomes without the potential for conflict with non EU-Parties that the proposed Appendix I listings is likely to result in. More effort should be made to raise this with the CMS Secretariat to see what has and could be done under that MoU so that Parties can consider this as an alternative way forward and one, we believe, that is more likely to succeed. Statement by the European Commission The Commission recalls that it would have preferred the words "and in respect of which the Union has adopted rules" to be deleted from Article 1(1). It indeed considers that the insertion of these words is superfluous since Recital 4 clearly explains that the two species in question are covered by EU rules. It is even misleading as such words could be interpreted as implying that certain aspects of the amendments proposed are not covered by EU rules.
