Subject: Proposal for a Directive of the European Parliament and of the Council on the accessibility of public sector bodies' websites.
- Examination of the Presidency text

1. On 3 December 2012, the Commission adopted its proposal for a Directive of the EP and of the Council on the accessibility of public sector bodies' websites on the basis of Article 114 TFEU¹, which provides for the EP and for the Council to act in accordance with the ordinary legislative procedure and after consulting the Economic and Social Committee. The proposal aims to approximate the laws, regulations and administrative practices of the Member States related to the requirements for web accessibility of public sector bodies' websites, in order to improve the functioning of the internal market. The proposal was required under Action 64 of the Digital Agenda and is also in line with Article 9 of the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, to which the EU and Member States are parties. It is closely linked to other initiatives such as the European Disability Strategy 2010-2020, the eGovernment Action Plan 2011-2015 or finally the European Accessibility Act, which has been proposed by the Commission on 2 December 2015.

2. After a first presentation of the proposal and of its impact assessment in January 2013, the Council Working Party on Telecommunications and the Information Society (WP TELE) discussed the proposal under the Irish Presidency. Its progress report² highlighted the main issues raised by delegations, i.e.: the use of standards, scope, legal basis and the costs and benefits of the implementation of the proposal. A report by the Greek Presidency took the status of the file forward to May 2014.³ Discussions on the file continued under the Italian, Latvian and Luxembourg Presidencies, as set out in their respective progress reports.⁴
3. Under the Luxembourg Presidency, the proposal was discussed in the WP TELE meetings of 28 October, 18 November and 4 December. During those meetings, the discussions mostly focused on the risk of undue burden, the new minimum harmonisation clause, and the scope. A final review of the text in annex is also foreseen in the WP TELE on 16 December.
4. Compared to the latest document⁵ examined by the WP TELE on 4 December, the text has been updated mostly to update some recitals, take into account a constitutional issue (article 1(4a)) and, in article 1(5) add one exclusion (schools, kindergartens, nurseries) to the scope of the Directive (article 1(5)). All changes compared to the latest document are indicated in bold or strikethrough.
5. While no full consensus exists on the Council's current text, the Presidency believes that the positions between delegations have converged to such an extent that the text set in annex is a good basis for a mandate.
6. Thus, the Presidency invites the Coreper to grant a first mandate on the basis of the text set in annex so that the Council is ready to engage in negotiations with the Parliament. The Dutch Presidency has tentatively scheduled a first trilogue on 26 January 2016.

7. In the European Parliament, Mr. Jorgo Chatzimarkakis (IMCO) was appointed as Rapporteur. Prior to the end of its term of office, the outgoing EP adopted its first reading position on 26 February 2014.⁶ In the new EP, Ms. Dita Charanzova (IMCO) has been appointed Rapporteur.

 8. The European Economic and Social Committee gave its opinion on 22 May 2013.

The providers of information and services, such as public sector bodies, rely increasingly on the Internet in order to produce, collect and provide a wide range of information and services online, which are essential to the public. In that respect, the security of transmission of information and the protection of personal data are of great importance.[AM 2]

(2) Web-accessibility refers to principles and techniques to be observed when constructing websites in order to render the content of these websites accessible to all users, in particular people with functional limitations, including persons with disabilities. The content of websites includes textual as well as non-textual information, and also the downloading of forms and two-way interaction, e.g. the processing of digital forms, authentication, and transactions like case handling and payments.	Deleted [AM 3]	(2) Web accessibility refers to principles and techniques to be observed when constructing websites in order to render the content of these websites more accessible to users, in particular people with functional limitations, including persons with disabilities.

(3) The Commission's eGovernment Action Plan 2011-2015⁸ calls for action to develop eGovernment services that ensure inclusiveness and accessibility.	(3) In its Communication of 15 December 2010 entitled 'eGovernment Action Plan 2011-2015 Harnessing ICT to promote smart, sustainable & innovative Government', the Commission called for action to develop eGovernment services that ensure inclusiveness and accessibility. At the same time, more efforts are needed for the effective implementation of the e-Inclusion policy, which aims to reduce gaps in information and communication technology (ICT) usage and to promote the use of ICT to overcome exclusion, and to improve economic performance, employment opportunities, quality of life, social participation and cohesion, including democratic consultations. (5) The Framework Programme for Research, Technological Development and Demonstration and the Competitiveness and Innovation Programme support research on and the development of technological solutions to accessibility problems.
(6) By ratifying the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities ('the UN Convention'), the majority of the Member States and the Union, by its conclusion, have committed themselves "to ensure to persons with disabilities access, on equal basis with others, to inter alia information and communication technologies" and "to take appropriate measures [...] to promote access for persons with disabilities to new information and communications technologies and systems, including the Internet."

(8) The Council Regulation (EC) No 1081/2006 laying down general provisions on the European Regional Development Fund, the European Social Fund and the Cohesion Fund¹⁰ contains provisions on the accessibility of ICT. It does not, however, address specificities of web-accessibility.
	(8a) (new) The European Parliament resolution of 25 October 2011^{24a} stresses that innovative and knowledge-based economies cannot develop without accessible content and forms for people with disabilities governed by binding legislation, such as accessible websites for the blind and subtitled content for the hard of hearing, including mass media services, online services for people using sign language, smart phone applications and tactile and vocal aids in public media. 	(8b) (new) The Digital Agenda for Europe stresses that positive action to help persons with disabilities to access cultural content is key to the full enjoyment of Union citizenship and calls for full implementation of the Memorandum of Understanding on Digital Access for persons with disabilities. The production of documents, such as reports, books and legislative acts, made available on public websites in such a way as to make them fully accessible, alongside the support for the private sector that has been called for with a view to encouraging investment in that area, could make a major contribution towards meeting that objective and promote the development of skills and service providers within the Union. In this respect, the efforts made in the framework of the Grand Coalition for Digital Jobs, which is a follow-up to the Employment Package and which addresses ICT specialists and aims to respond to the skills gaps, including literacy and working skills in the ICT sector, are of great importance.[AM 13]

COMMISSION	EP	COUNCIL	POSSIBLE COMPROMISE SOLUTION
(10) Several Member States have adopted measures based on internationally-used guidelines for the design of accessible websites, but the guidance provided often refers to different versions or compliancy levels of those guidelines, or technical variations at national level have been introduced.
(11) Suppliers of web-accessibility include a large number of small and medium-sized enterprises (SME). Suppliers and SME in particular are discouraged from entering business ventures outside their own domestic markets. Due to the differences in web-accessibility specifications and regulations, their competitiveness and growth are hampered by the additional costs they would incur in the development and marketing of cross-border web-accessibility related products and services.

	(11a) (new) The guarantee of net neutrality is essential for public sector bodies' websites to remain accessible now and in the future, and for the Internet to be open. [AM 14]
(12) Buyers of websites and related products and services are faced with high prices in service provision or dependence on a single supplier, due to limited competition. Suppliers often favour variations of proprietary 'standards', hindering later scope for interoperability of user agents, and Union-wide ubiquitous access to website contents. Fragmentation among national regulations reduces the benefits that could result from sharing experiences with national and international peers in responding to societal and technological developments.

(13) The approximation of national measures at Union level, based on an agreement on accessibility requirements for public sector bodies' websites, is necessary in order to put an end to fragmentation. It would reduce uncertainty for web-developers and would foster interoperability. By using accessibility requirements which are technology neutral, innovation will not be hampered and may possibly even be stimulated.	(13) The approximation of national measures at Union level, based on an agreement on accessibility requirements for public sector bodies' websites and for websites operated by entities performing public tasks is necessary in order to put an end to fragmentation. It would reduce uncertainty for web-developers and would foster interoperability. Member States should encourage the use of adequate and interoperable accessibility requirements when putting contracts for website contents out to tender. Technology neutral accessibility requirements will not hamper innovation and may possibly even stimulate it. [AM 15]

(14) A harmonised approach should also allow Union public sector bodies and enterprises to gain economic and social benefits from extending the provision of on-line services to include more citizens and customers. This should increase the potential of the internal market for web-accessibility products and services. The resulting market growth should allow undertakings to contribute to economic growth and jobs creation within the Union. Strengthening the internal market should make investment in the Union more attractive. Governments should benefit from cheaper provision of web-accessibility.	(14) A harmonised approach should also allow Union public sector bodies and enterprises to gain economic and social benefits from extending the provision of on-line services to include more citizens and customers. This should increase the potential of the internal market for web accessibility products and services and further the completion of the digital single market. The resulting market growth should allow undertakings to contribute to economic growth and jobs creation within the Union. Strengthening the internal market should make investment in the Union more attractive. Governments should benefit from cheaper provision of web accessibility. [AM 16]

(15) Citizens should benefit from wider access to online public sector services and should receive services and information which will facilitate the enjoyment of their rights across the Union, notably their right to move and reside freely within the territory of the Union and their freedom of establishment and to provide services.	(15) Citizens should benefit from wider access to online public services, should be able to access news, cultural and entertainment content enabling them to play a full part in social and working life, and should receive services and information which will facilitate their daily lives and the enjoyment of their rights across the Union, notably their right to move and reside freely within the territory of the Union, their right of access to information and their freedom of establishment and to provide services.[AM 17]

	(15a) Online services play an increasingly important role in society. The Internet is a key tool for access to information and education and for engaging in society. Therefore, in the interests of social inclusion, there should be universal accessibility to public sector bodies' websites, as well as to websites providing basic services for the public, e.g. important news pages and media libraries, banking services (online banking) and interest group information and services.[AM 18]
(16) The web-accessibility requirements defined in this Directive are technology neutral. They only indicate which basic functionalities have to be fulfilled for the user to perceive, operate or understand a site and its content. They do not specify how this has to be achieved or what technology should be selected for a particular site, on-line information or application. As such they do not hamper innovation.

(17) Interoperability related to web-accessibility should be based on commonly adopted and used specifications that maximize the compatibility of the web-content with current and future user agents and assistive technologies. More specifically, web-content should provide user agents with a common internal coding of natural language, structures, relations, and sequences, as well as data of any embedded user-interface components. Interoperability thus benefits the users, allowing them to employ their user agents ubiquitously to access websites: they might also benefit from greater choice and reduced prices across the Union. Interoperability would also benefit the suppliers and buyers of web-accessibility related products and services.

(18) As underlined in the Digital Agenda for Europe, public authorities should play their part in promoting markets for online content. Governments can stimulate content markets by making public sector information available under transparent, effective and non-discriminatory conditions. This is an important source of potential growth of innovative online services.
	(18a) (new) It should be possible for the public authorities of the Member States to require certain websites to be carried on servers within the Union in order to prevent spying by parties outside the Union or leaks of information and to ensure that parties outside the Union cannot close down services which are important on security grounds.[AM 19]

(19) The Directive should aim at ensuring that certain types of public sector bodies' websites that are essential to the public are made accessible according to common requirements. The deadlines for complying with the requirements laid down in this Directive should be staggered so that its scope can be widened to include all public sector bodies' websites providing services directly to the public.[AM 20]	(19) The Directive should aim at ensuring that public sector bodies' websites are made more accessible according to common requirements.

(21) The Commission has already issued a mandate M/376 to the European Standardisation Organisations, to develop a European standard specifying the functional accessibility requirements for ICT products and services, including web content, which could be used in public procurement as well as for other purposes like procurement in the private sector. To this end, the European Standardisation Organisations are required to establish close co-operation with relevant industry standards forums and consortia including the World Wide Web Consortium (W3C/WAI). A harmonised standard that would provide presumption of conformity with the web-accessibility requirements laid down in this Directive should be built upon the outcome of this work.		(21) A harmonised standard that would provide presumption of conformity with the web accessibility requirements laid down in this Directive should be built upon the chapter 9 of the European Standard EN 301 549 ‘Accessibility requirements suitable for public procurement of ICT products and services in Europe’, on the international standard ISO/IEC 40500:2012 or on future versions of these standards.

The international standard ISO/IEC 40500:2012 is exactly the same as the original Web Content Accessibility Guidelines 2.0. The Success Criteria and Requirements for Level AA conformance specified for web pages in the version 2.0 of the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (WCAG 2.0) from the W3C are broadly recognised by stakeholders both internationally and at European level, to provide the basis for adequate web-accessibility specifications. 1. This Directive aims at approximating the laws, regulations and administrative provisions of the Member States related to the accessibility of the content of public sector bodies' websites to all users, in particular people with functional limitations including persons with disabilities.	1. This Directive aims to approximate the laws, regulations and administrative provisions of the Member States in relation to the accessibility to all users of the content of public sector bodies' websites and websites operated by entities performing public tasks to the public , in particular to persons with disabilities and elderly persons . [AM 28]	1. In order to improve the functioning of the internal market, this Directive aims at approximating the laws, regulations and administrative provisions of the Member States related to the web accessibility requirements of public sector bodies' websites available to the public at large, thereby enabling those websites to be more accessible to users, in particular to people with disabilities.
	1a. (new) According to the UN Convention, persons with disabilities include those having long-term physical, mental, intellectual or sensory impairments, which, may in conjunction with other barriers, hinder their full and effective participation in society on an equal basis with others. [AM 29]

Article 3 Requirements for web-accessibility
1. Member States shall take the necessary measures to ensure that the websites concerned are made accessible		1. Member States shall take the necessary measures to ensure that public sector bodies' websites comply with the all of the four globally accepted principles of accessibility: perceivability, operability, understandability, robustness, while not imposing a disproportionate or undue burden, financially or organisationally, on these bodies. ¹⁹

¹⁹ To be accompanied by the following recital :

The 4 principles of accessibility are :

- a) Perceivability, meaning that information and user interface components must be presentable to users in ways they can perceive.
- b) Operability, meaning that user interface components and navigation must be operable.
- c) Understandability, meaning that information and the operation of user interface must be understandable.
- d) Robustness, meaning that Content must be robust enough that it can be interpreted reliably by a wide variety of user agents, including assistive technologies.

In this context, public sector bodies' websites should provide-alternate versions of non-text content which comply with these principles.
