Such rules include in particular reporting requirements, a cash penalties regime and mandatory buy-ins. Despite the absence of experience in applying those rules, the development and specification of the framework in Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) 2018/1229¹ has allowed all interested parties to better understand the regime and the challenges its application could give rise to. In this regard, the scope of cash penalties and mandatory buy-ins set out in Article 7 of Regulation (EU) No 909/2014 should be clarified, in particular by specifying which categories of transactions are excluded. Such exclusions should cover in particular transactions that failed for reasons not attributable to the participants and transactions that do not involve two trading parties, for which the application of cash penalties or mandatory buy-ins would not be practicable or could lead to detrimental consequences for the market, such as certain transactions from the primary market, corporate actions, reorganisations, creation and redemption of fund units and realignments. As such, it is necessary that all measures to improve settlement efficiency are explored to reduce settlement fails. To achieve that objective, this Regulation contains a number of measures, including cash penalties, more efficient operational processes, and closer monitoring of supervisory activities to target settlement fails. Nevertheless, further efforts are needed to improve settlement efficiency in the Union. A range of different practices already exist on the market, for example, hold and release or partial settlement, however other measures could also be considered. Accordingly, ESMA should, in close cooperation with the ESCB, review industry best practices, both within the Union and internationally, with a view to identifying all relevant measures that could be implemented by settlement systems or market participants, and updating, where necessary and appropriate, the draft regulatory technical standards on measures to encourage and
