Proposal for a

REGULATION OF THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND OF THE COUNCIL

on the protection of the Union and its Member States from economic coercion by third countries

THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND THE COUNCIL OF THE EUROPEAN UNION,

Having regard to the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, and in particular Article 207(2) thereof,

Having regard to the proposal from the European Commission,

After transmission of the draft legislative act to the national parliaments,

Acting in accordance with the ordinary legislative procedure,

Whereas:

- (1) Pursuant to Article 3(5) of the Treaty on European Union (TEU), in its relations with the wider world, the Union is to uphold and promote its values and interests and contribute to the protection of its citizens and is to contribute, among other things, to solidarity and mutual respect among peoples and the strict observance and the development of international law, including respect for the principles of the United Nations Charter (the “UN Charter”).
- (2) Pursuant to Article 21(1) of the ~~Treaty on European Union~~ TEU, the Union's action on the international scene is to be guided by principles such as the rule of law, equality and solidarity, and respect for the principles of the ~~United Nations~~ UN Charter and international law. It also states that the Union is to promote multilateral solutions to common problems.
- (3) Pursuant to Article 1 of the ~~United Nations~~ UN Charter, one of the purposes of the United Nations ~~include the purpose is~~ to develop friendly relations among nations based on, among other things, respect for the principle of equal rights.
- (4) Article 21(2) of the ~~Treaty on European Union~~ TEU requires the Union to define and pursue common policies and actions, and work for a high degree of cooperation in all fields of international relations, ~~among other things~~ in order to, among other things, safeguard its values, fundamental interests, independence and integrity, consolidate and support the rule of law, and the principles of international law.
- (5) The modern interconnected world economy ~~creates an~~ increases the risk of ~~and opportunity for~~ economic coercion, as it provides countries with enhanced, including hybrid, means to deploy such coercion. It is desirable that the Union contribute to the creation, development and clarification of international frameworks for the prevention and elimination of situations of economic coercion.

- (6) Whilst always acting within the framework of international law, it is essential that the Union possess an appropriate instrument to deter and counteract economic coercion by third countries in order to safeguard its rights and interests and those of its Member States. This is particularly the case where third countries take measures affecting trade or investment that interfere in the legitimate sovereign choices of the Union or a Member State by seeking to prevent or obtain the cessation, modification or adoption of a particular act by the Union or a Member State. Such measures affecting trade or investment may include not only actions taken on, and having effects within, the territory of the third country concerned, but also actions taken by the third country, including through entities controlled or directed by the third country and present in the Union, that cause harm to economic activities in the Union.
- (7) This Regulation aims to ensure an effective, efficient and swift Union response to economic coercion, including deterrence of economic coercion of the Union or a Member State and, ~~in the as a last resort, countermeasures. This Regulation should be~~ is without prejudice to other existing Union instruments and international agreements and actions thereunder in the area of common commercial policy, ~~including Regulation (EU) 2021/167 of the European Parliament and of the Council¹, given the specificity of the objectives pursued by this Regulation and the legal consequences deriving from the third country action that could lead to the application of this Regulation. Moreover, this Regulation should not modify the scope of application of other legal instruments, including other regulations defining the framework for implementing the common commercial policy.~~
- (8) Third countries' measures of economic coercion against a Member State affect the Union's internal market and the Union as a whole. The objectives of this Regulation, in particular counteracting third countries' economic coercion of the Union or a Member States, acting on their own cannot counteract third countries' economic coercion through measures falling under the area of common commercial policy. be sufficiently achieved by Member States acting on their own, but can be achieved with greater effectiveness at Union level. Given the exclusive competence conferred on the Union by Article 207 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union (TFEU), only the Union may. Moreover, This is because Member States as distinct actors under international law may not be entitled ~~under international law to respond to counteract third countries~~ economic coercion directed against the Union. ~~whilst the Union is entitled adopt countermeasures in response to economic coercion directed against a Member State. Additionally, given the exclusive competence conferred on the Union by Article 207 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union (TFEU), Member States are prevented from to taking common commercial policy measures in the area of common commercial policy, as a response to economic coercion. Therefore, those objectives can be achieved with greater effectiveness at Union level.~~
- (9) In accordance with the principle of proportionality, it is necessary and appropriate, for creating an effective and comprehensive framework for Union action against economic coercion, to lay down rules on the examination, determination and counteraction with regard to third countries' measures of economic coercion. In particular, the Union's response measures should be preceded by an examination of the facts, a determination of the existence of economic coercion, and, wherever possible, efforts to find a solution in cooperation with the third country concerned. Any measures imposed by the Union should be commensurate with the injury caused by the third countries' measures of economic coercion. The criteria for defining the Union response measures should take into account in particular the need to avoid or minimise collateral effects, administrative burdens and costs imposed on Union economic operators as well as the Union's interest. Therefore, this Regulation does not go beyond what is necessary in order to achieve the objectives pursued, in accordance with Article 5(4) ~~of the Treaty on European Union~~ TEU.

- (10) Any action undertaken by the Union on the basis of this Regulation should ~~comply be~~ consistent with ~~the Union's rights and obligations under~~ international law, ~~which encompass all rights and obligations deriving from international agreements concluded by the Union, as well as those applicable by virtue of~~ including customary international law. ~~Such rights and obligations in large part match the Member States' rights and obligations under international law.~~ Among the international agreements concluded by the Union and the Member States, the Agreement establishing the World Trade Organization (WTO) is the cornerstone of the rules-based multilateral trading system. The Union should continue to support that system, with the WTO at its core.

- (10bis) Customary international law, as reflected in Articles 22 and 49 to 53 of the Articles on Responsibility of States for Internationally Wrongful Acts ("ARSIWA"), adopted by the United Nations' International Law Commission at its fifty-third session in 2001 and taken note of by the United Nations General Assembly in resolution 56/83, allows, under certain conditions, such as proportionality and prior notice, the imposition of countermeasures, that is to say of measures that would otherwise be contrary to the international obligations of an injured party vis-à-vis the country responsible for a breach of international law, and that are aimed at obtaining the cessation of the breach or reparation for it.² Accordingly, ~~response measures adopted under this Regulation should take the form of either measures adhering to the Union's international obligations or measures constituting permitted countermeasures~~ Union response measures could consist, as necessary, not only in measures ~~adhering to~~ consistent with the Union's international obligations, but also in the non-performance of international obligations towards the third country concerned insofar as the measures of economic coercion of the third country constitute an internationally wrongful act. Under international law, and in accordance with the principle of proportionality, they should not exceed a level that is commensurate with the injury suffered by the Union or a Member State due to the third country's measures of economic coercion, taking into account the gravity of the third country's measures and the Union's rights and interests in question. In this respect, injury to the Union or a Member State is understood under international law to include injury to Union economic operators.

- (10ter) Where measures of economic coercion constitute an internationally wrongful act, the Union should, where appropriate, in addition to the cessation of economic coercion, request the third country concerned to make reparation of any injury caused to the Union or a Member State, in accordance with Articles 31 and 34-39 of the ARSIWA.

² — See Articles 22 and 49-53 of the Articles on Responsibility of States for Internationally Wrongful Acts, adopted by the United Nations' International Law Commission at its fifty-third session, in 2001, and taken note of by the United Nations General Assembly in resolution 56/83.

- (11) Coercion is prohibited and therefore a wrongful act under international law when a country deploys measures such as trade or investment restrictions in order to obtain from another country an action or inaction which that country is not internationally obliged to perform and which falls within its sovereignty, when the coercion reaches a certain qualitative or quantitative threshold, depending on both the ends pursued and the means deployed. The Commission should examine the third-country action on the basis of qualitative and quantitative criteria that help in determining whether the third country interferes in the legitimate sovereign choices of the Union or a Member State and whether its action constitutes economic coercion which requires a Union response. Among those criteria should be elements that characterise, both qualitatively and quantitatively, notably the form, the effects and the aim of the measures which the third country is deploying. Applying these criteria would ensure that only economic coercion with a sufficiently serious impact or a threat of economic coercion that is credible would fall under this Regulation. In addition, the Commission should examine closely whether the third country pursues a legitimate cause, because its objective is to uphold a concern that is internationally recognised, such as among other things the maintenance of international peace and security, the protection of human rights, and the protection of the environment, and notably the fight against climate change.
- (12) Acts by third countries are understood under customary international law to include all forms of action or omission, including threats, that are attributable to a State under customary international law. Articles 2(a) and 4-11 of the ARSIWA confirm that customary international law qualifies as an act of a State, in particular: the conduct of any State organ, of a person or entity which is not an organ of the State but which is empowered by the law of that State to exercise elements of governmental authority, an organ placed at the disposal of a State by another State, a person or group of persons that are acting on the instructions of, or under the direction or control of, that State in carrying out the conduct, a person or group of persons that are exercising elements of the governmental authority in the absence or default of the official authorities and in circumstances such as to call for the exercise of those elements of authority, and conduct that the State acknowledges and adopts as its own.³
- (13) The Commission should examine whether third-country measures are coercive, on its own initiative or upon a reasoned request of a Member State. The Commission could carry out such examination ~~following~~ on the basis of information received from any reliable source, including legal and natural persons or a Member State. To determine if a third country applies or threatens to apply measures affecting trade or investment, the Commission's assessment should be based on facts and not mere allegations or remote conjectures or possibilities. In order to ensure uniform conditions for the implementation of this Regulation, and in view of the fact that a decision determining the existence of economic coercion by a third country requires an assessment of the Union's interests in the context of its relations with the third country concerned, and under the Regulation implies specific actions vis-à-vis that third country, thus shaping the Union policy in its regard, the implementing powers should be conferred on the Council. Therefore, following the Commission's examination and in the event that the measure of a third country applies or threatens to apply coercive measures affecting trade or investment, the Commission should submit a proposal to the Council to adopt an implementing act determining that the third-country is applying a measure of economic coercion. The Council should act expeditiously. Following this examination, the Commission should determine in a decision whether the third-country measure is coercive, following the advisory procedure, given the sequential logic in relation to the adoption of Union response measures. The Commission should decide on the decision to be adopted, taking the utmost account of the conclusions drawn from the discussions within the committee and of the opinion delivered, in application of Article 4(2) of Regulation (EU) No 182/2011 of the European Parliament and of the Council⁴. The Commission should communicate any affirmative determination to the third country concerned, together with a request that the economic coercion cease and a request, where appropriate, that to cease the economic coercion and, where appropriate, repair any injury.

- (13bis) In an effort to secure the cessation of economic coercion, the Union should seek an early and just settlement of the matter. Accordingly, the Commission should, on behalf of the Union, afford adequate opportunity for consultations with the third country concerned and, when if that third country is ready to enter into consultations in good faith, engage with it expeditiously. In the course of such consultations, the Commission should endeavour to resort to means such as mediation, conciliation, good offices by a third party or submitting the matter to international adjudication, without prejudice to the delimitation division of competence of between the Union and the Member States. In particular, when the third country suspends its actions and agrees to submit the matter to international adjudication, an international agreement with the third country should be concluded, as necessary. Such an international agreement could be concluded either by the Union, in accordance with the procedure laid down in Article 218 TFEU or by the Member State concerned or by the Union, where the Treaties so provide and following the procedure laid down in Article 218 TFEU and in respect of the Council's policy-making and coordinating functions.
- (14) The Union should support and cooperate with third countries affected by the same or similar measures of economic coercion or other interested third countries. The Union should participate in international coordination in bilateral, plurilateral or multilateral fora that are geared towards the prevention or elimination of the economic coercion. The Commission should represent the Union and express its the Union position as established by after having consulted the Council, in accordance with the EU Treaties, where appropriate, with the participation of the Member States.
- (15) The Union should only impose countermeasures when if other means such as negotiations, mediation or adjudication do not lead to the prompt and effective cessation of the economic coercion and, where appropriate, to reparation of the injury it has caused to the Union or its Member States, and where action is necessary to protect the interests and rights of the Union and its Member States under international law and it is in the Union's interest to take such action. It is appropriate that the Regulation sets out the applicable rules and procedures for the imposition and application of Union response measures and permits expeditious action where necessary to preserve the effectiveness of any Union response measures.

- (16) Union response measures adopted in accordance with this Regulation should be selected and designed on the basis of objective criteria, including: the effectiveness of the measures in inducing the cessation of coercion by the third country; their potential to provide relief to economic operators within the Union affected by the third-country measures of economic coercion; the aim of avoiding or minimising negative economic and other effects on the Union; and the avoidance of disproportionate administrative complexity and costs. It is also essential that the selection and design of Union response measures take account of the Union's interest, which includes inter alia the interests of both upstream and downstream industries and final consumers in the Union. When the Commission is considering Union response measures relating to, inter alia, trade in services, financial services or the protection of intellectual property rights, it should prioritise measures that would not have a disproportionate impact on legal certainty and predictability of the measures for economic operators, and on the administration of relevant national regulations. Similarly, when the Commission is contemplating restrictions relating to inter alia, tenders in the area of public procurement, the protection or commercial exploitation of trade-related intellectual property rights, the exportation of goods falling under the Union export control regime, registrations or authorisations under the chemicals legislation of the Union or registrations or authorisations under the sanitary and phytosanitary legislation of the Union, it should prioritise restrictions that would not have a disproportionate impact on upstream and downstream industries and final consumers within the Union. Consequently, When the Commission is considering Union response measures affecting authorisations, registrations, licenses or other rights for the purposes of commercial activities, it should prioritise measures valid throughout the Union and based on secondary legislation, or, where no such measures are appropriate, measures in areas where extensive Union legislation exists. Union response measures should be selected from a wide array of options in order to allow the adoption of the most suitable measures in any given case.

[(16bis) The Union could adopt measures with regard to natural or legal persons connected or linked to the government of that third country, which encompasses any State organ whatever its character as an organ of the central Government or of a territorial unit of the State, as they could be effective to inter alia induce the prompt cessation of economic coercion or to avoid negative effects on Member States and Union economic operators. Accordingly, these response measures should apply to governmental economic operators or non-governmental economic operators such as enterprises owned by the government of the third country concerned, designated monopolies, enterprises exercising elements of governmental authority, economic operators acting at the instigation of that government through legal or other means such as significant funding, or any other economic operators whose actions demonstrate that is connected or linked to that government, including persons that have contributed to economic coercion.]

[(16ter) As a result of economic coercion, Union natural and legal persons could suffer significant harm. Without prejudice to the third country's obligation to repair the injury, it could be appropriate to entitle Union persons to recover their damage from natural or legal persons that are not only connected or linked to the government of that third country, but that have also contributed to economic coercion. Such contribution may consist in requesting the government of the third country concerned to interfere with the legitimate sovereign choice of the Union or a Member State or providing assistance in the elaboration of measures of economic coercion. To recover damage, Union persons should invoke the responsibility of the person designated under this Regulation before the courts of Member States where such person holds assets. In accordance with the civil law applicable in the Member State concerned, and on the basis of a decision by the competent national authority, the recovery could take the form of seizure and sale of assets held by the designated persons, including shares held in entities incorporated within the Union.]

- (16quater) As part of the Union response in order to induce the cessation of economic coercion by third countries, the Commission could also adopt measures pursuant to other legal instruments that confer specific powers to the Commission, for example with regard to the granting of Union funding, following the applicable procedures set out therein. Measures adopted by the Commission pursuant to such other legal instruments should be synchronised with actions taken under this Regulation and be consistent with the Union's obligations under international law. In particular, such measures, together with Union response measures adopted under this Regulation, as the case may be, should be commensurate with the injury caused by the third countries' measures of economic coercion. This Regulation is without prejudice to rules and procedures under such other legal instruments.
- (17) It is appropriate to set out rules on the origin or nationality of goods, services and service providers, investment and holders of intellectual property rights, for the purposes of determining the Union response measures. The rules of origin ~~or~~ and of nationality should be determined in the light of the prevailing rules for non-preferential trade and investment that are applicable under Union law and the Union's international agreements.
- (18) In pursuing the objective of obtaining the cessation of ~~the a~~ measure of economic coercion, Union response measures consisting of restrictions on foreign direct investment or on trade in services should ~~only~~ only apply only with regard to services supplied, or direct investments made, within the Union by one or more legal persons established in the Union and which are owned or controlled by persons of the third country concerned where necessary to ensure the effectiveness of Union response measures and in particular to prevent their avoidance. The decision to impose any such restrictions ~~will~~ should be duly justified in implementing acts adopted pursuant to this Regulation in the light of the criteria specified in this Regulation.
- (19) After the adoption of Union response measures, the Commission should continuously assess the situation in relation to the third-country measures of economic coercion, the effectiveness of the Union response measures and their effects, with a view to adjusting, suspending or terminating the response measures accordingly. It is therefore necessary to set out the rules and procedures for amending, suspending and terminating Union response measures and the situations in which they se are appropriate.
- (20) It is essential to provide for opportunities for stakeholder involvement for the purposes of adoption and amendment of Union response measures; and, where as relevant, for the purposes of suspension and termination, in view of the potential impact on such stakeholders.

- (21) It is important to ensure ~~an~~-effective communication and ~~an~~ exchange of views and information between the Commission on the one hand, and the European Parliament and the Council, on the other, in particular on efforts to ~~engage-enter into consultations~~ with the third country concerned to explore options with a view to obtaining the cessation of the economic coercion and on matters that may lead to the adoption of Union response measures under this Regulation.
- (22) In order to allow ~~the update of the range of Union response measures under this Regulation and~~ the adjustment of the rules of origin ~~and/or~~ nationality to take account of relevant developments in international instruments, or of other technical rules necessary for the application of the Regulation, the power to adopt acts in accordance with Article 290 ~~of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union TFEU~~ should be delegated to the Commission to amend ~~the list of Union responses set out in Annex I and technical rules necessary for the application of the Regulation, including~~ rules of origin ~~and~~ nationality laid down in Annex II. It is of particular importance that the Commission carry out appropriate consultations during its preparatory work, including at expert level, and that those consultations be conducted in accordance with the principles laid down in the Interinstitutional Agreement on Better Law-Making.⁵⁵ In particular, to ensure equal participation in the preparation of delegated acts, the European Parliament and the Council should receive all documents at the same time as Member States' experts, and their experts systematically should have access to meetings of Commission expert groups dealing with the preparation of delegated acts.
- [(23) In order to ensure uniform conditions for the implementation of this Regulation, implementing powers should be conferred on the Commission. Those powers should be exercised in accordance with Regulation (EU) No 182/2011 ~~of the European Parliament and of the Council.~~⁶⁹]
- [(24) The examination procedure should be used for the adoption of Union response measures and their amendment, suspension or termination given that those acts determine the Union's responses to economic coercion falling within the scope of this Regulation. ~~Considering the specific nature of this regulation, Article 5(4) of Regulation (EU) No 182/2011 should apply where the competent Committee delivers no opinion. In the case where Commission calls for an appeal committee to examine its draft implementing act, special attention should be given to solutions which command the widest possible support within the appeal committee, in full application of article 6 of Regulation (EU) No 182/2011.]~~
- [(25) The Commission should adopt immediately applicable implementing acts of limited duration where, in duly justified cases relating to the adoption, amendment, suspension or termination of Union response measures, imperative grounds of urgency ~~so~~-require expedited action to avoid irreparable damage or to ensure consistency with international law. Such expedited action could prevent the coercion from causing or worsening any
