The FIU shall be responsible for disseminating the results of its analyses and any additional relevant information to other relevant competent authorities where there are grounds to suspect money laundering, its predicate offences or terrorist financing. It shall be able to obtain additional information from obliged entities. Secure and protected channels should be used for the dissemination.	Ad relevant competent authorities – as pointed out in reactions to PCY Amendments 30 June 2022, the notion of competent authorities is quite broad. It is therefore suggested to clarify that the information shall be disseminated only to relevant competent authorities, in order to prevent indiscriminate dissemination of information to those types of competent authorities for which particular information may be of no use.

While there is a ratio behind this condition in case of suspension under paragraph 1, it may be too constraining in case of paragraph 2, as pointed out by MS. Therefore, the Presidency suggests adjusting the hypothesis in case of instrument under paragraph 2 so that the suspension may be imposed if there is a suspicion that the business relationship may be used for ML/TF.

Indeed, in such a case, the purpose of suspension goes beyond reported suspicious transactions. Therefore, the previous definition of the purpose of the suspension may be too narrow. On the other hand, in the light of the data protection rules, it could be detrimental to drop the definition of purpose

The Presidency therefore suggests to retain the definition of the purpose of the suspension, and to extend it so that it is not focused solely on the analysis of the suspicious transactions, but that it encompasses analyses in general as well, since FIUs analyse also other circumstances related to suspicion of ML/TF than just transactions. Furthermore, in replies to the Questionnaire following the AML working party meeting on 20th June 2022 (WK 10501/2022), concerns were raised regarding the risk of tipping-off in relation to suspensions. However, as already drafted in recital 48c (now 48f), it is up to MS to ensure that national upper limit for suspension period is in line with fundamental rights. If the requested FIU is unable to respond within 24 hours or cannot access the information directly, it shall provide a justification. Where the provision of the information requested within the period of 24 hours would put a disproportionate burden on the requested FIU, it may postpone the provision of the information. In that case the requested FIU shall immediately inform the requesting FIU of this postponement and shall provide the requested information as soon as possible, but not later than within three calendar days.	In exceptional, justified and urgent cases, If if the requested FIU is unable to respond within 24 hours 3 working days or cannot access the information directly, it shall provide a justification. The proposed amendments aim to avoid the undesired consequences highlighted under paragraph 6 and, at the same time, introduce a mandatory requirement of “fast track” re-sponses when two conditions are fulfilled simultaneously: the underlying cases are “exceptional, justified and urgent”; the information sought is directly and immediately available to the requested FIU. The requirement maintains the appropriate flexibility while, at the same time, setting an expectation that, under the above circumstances, cooperation should be provided within a timeframe not exceeding 3 working days.
