FR:  The draft Compromise targets research that is “distributed to clients or potential clients by investment firms”. This seems inadequate because in practice, investment research (sponsored or not) is almost never passed on to clients, but is used by investment firms to make investment decisions on behalf of clients (portfolio management) or to issue investment recommendations to clients. In the vast majority of cases, clients do not actually have access to the research. Instead, research is a tool used by investment firms to enhance the investment service they provide to their clients. We suggest to rephrase Recital 5 and Article 24(3a) & (3b) accordingly. Otherwise, the new regime for sponsored research risks being an empty shell.  We propose the following redrafting :  “3a. 		We strongly support the presidency compromise that the free float requirement needs only to be met at the time of admission. PT: We are in favour of the reduction of the free float threshold from 25% to 10% but could also support a further reduction to 5%. We consider that the threshold should be also fulfilled continuously, as to ensures a minimum liquidity, and to mitigate potential reductions in market liquidity in case of difficulties experienced by the issuer, such as capital increases. Thus although we prefer the Comission proposal, we can accept the PRES proposal, as a way of compromise.
